Minde, Newland and Bartholomew Chosen from the Clergy.

PROVIDENCE, March 29.—The delegates to the seventy-second annual session of the New England Southern Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church plunged into the work of cleaning up the minor business matters when the third day's meetings were begun today. Five meetings were on the program, including a session of the lay electoral conference in the forenoon, followed by a joint session of both lay and clerical electoral conferences in the afternoon. The usual devotional hour was the occasion for an address to the incoming classes by Bishop W. T. Anderson.

A resolution protesting against the wearing of religious garb by teachers in the Indian schools was introduced by Rev. Elliott F. Studley of Danielson, Conn., and adopted.

The clerical and lay delegates met separately during the forenoon to elect delegates to the quadrennial General Conference in Minneapolis. At noon the clergy had chosen three of the four to be elected. They were Revs. Edward S. Ninde of Providence, District Superintendent John H. Newland of the Norwich district and James J. Bartholomew of New Bedford. A final ballot was cast for the fourth delegate, but adjournment was taken until 3 o'clock before the tellers had reported.

The lay delegates elected Freeman F. Patten of Stafford Springs, Conn., by a unanimous vote, the secretary casting one ballot. The remainder of the forenoon was taken up by the nomination of candidates for the other three places.

On the first formal ballot Benjamin F. Thurston of Newport received the requisite number of votes, and was elected the second delegate.

SUSPENSION OF WORK CERTAIN.

Anthracite Men Not Inclined to Reject Demand for Small Wage Increase.

NEW YORK, March 29.—The anthracite coal operators are not inclined to reject absolutely a demand for a small increase in the wages of the miners, according to the opinion expressed today by a person authorized to speak for one of the most prominent coal operators. He said further that the operatives are ready to meet the miners at any time and resume negotiations.

"Would the operators welcome a resumption of negotiations?" he was asked.

"It is my opinion that they would welcome any negotiations leading towards the avoidance of a strike," he replied.

The demand for a 6 per cent increase in wages, he continued, would never be granted. He added that the miners had shown an apparent unwillingness to compromise upon the basis of a small increase or to consider any terms other than those contained in their original demands. The operators, he said, had shown a disposition to meet the miners on middle ground and in view of this apparent willingness any further overtures should come from the miners.

A suspension of work April 1 was regarded today by operators as practically certain. Coal dealers do not look for a long suspension in either anthracite or bituminous districts and believe its effects will not be felt in the main centres of population for at least a month.

SOMETHING OF A MOVE.

Big Doorway of Vault of Savings Bank of Newport Ready to be Placed in Position.

Thursday evening after the traffic had slackened on Thames street J. K. Sullivan moved the big doorway of the vault of the Savings Bank of Newport from the freight depot to the bank. It was something of a move, as the door weighs about 22 tons and is a substantial-looking mass of steel, and the truck on which it was moved weighs a number of tons. Mr. Sullivan had six pairs of horses for the work and expected to have to use a block and tackle to get the gear started. He was all ready for this, but when the 12 horses had been hitched and started the big gear with its heavy load moved right off, and the roadway supplied for the freight yard proved that it was well made. A dense fog mixed with smoke made Long wharf seem shrouded in fog as the big procession, with many accompanying lookers-on, moved toward Thames street. Bill Oman stood in the driver's place and handled two pairs of horses; "Nailey" handled the next pair from the ground and each of the other three first pairs had a driver.

It was 6:40 when the procession reached Thames street and swung into the street, the 12 big horses doing a rapid swing from straight up Washington square onto the Thames street blocks. The team moved rapidly and five minutes later was at the foot of Green street. The turn here was a trifle short, and the right front wheel struck the curb and a whiffletree snapped. The horses were brought onto Thames street and with the aid of a bar the big wheelers backed the gear away from the curb, the grade of the pavement helping. The gear was then pulled a trifle farther south, the horses were again swung into Green street and the gear was carried over the crossing. Another whiffletree snapped and the gear began settling in the roadbed. It was evident that further work with the horses was useless, and they were taken off. The big piece was then backed up and planks were placed under the rear wheels. This morning a falls was called into use and the gear was moved up the street on planks, just like a house, and jacked up ready to be moved into the building when the weather favors.

The door which fits into this doorway is yet to be moved[illegible] way is yet to be moved. It is not quite as large as the doorway, and it weighs a trifle less, about 18 tons.

ANOTHER PROTEST FROM NEWPORT.

Republicans Assist in Defeat of Leader Bennett.

Pothier Recommends $1,000,000 Bond Issue for State Docks.

[Special Despatch to The News.]

PROVIDENCE, March 29.—A feature of the day in the state senate was provided when Leader Bennett awakened with a thud and found he had suffered a defeat at the hands of one or two Democrats, assisted by plenty of Republicans. Governor Pothier sent a message recommending a million-dollar bond issue for the construction of state docks. House Leader Jennings bobbed up again with new acts for the better policing of the state, and another large petition in opposition to the passage of the Newport police commission bill was received.

In the senate Senator Bennett of Woonsocket moved the suspension of joint rules 11, 12, and 27, which provide for the printing of all bills and for the placing of them on the calendar before passage. Senator McKenna, a Democrat, thought this was a little too early to do this, and that the members should for awhile longer be given the opportunity of examining the legislation which they delight be called upon to pass. Senator Champlin, Republican, of Block Island said he was of like mind. Senator Jones, Republican, of Cranston said he would like to have the motion withdrawn until Tuesday. Mr. Bennett insisted on his motion, but gave no reason. Senator Munroe, Democrat, of Providence moved to adjourn. The motion was lost by a vote of 12 to 8. Senator Wilbur, who was in the chair, put the original motion. There was a weak sound from the ayes and a loud one from the nays, showing that the body of the Republicans were voting with the Democrats. Leader Bennett floundered about for some other manner of bringing the matter to a vote again. Senator Bowen of Warwick moved adjournment, and the senate so voted.

Previously Senator Champlin had introduced a resolution authorizing the town council of New Shoreham to sell the real estate of the Free Will Baptist Church. Referred to the judiciary committee.

Senator Lunn of North Smithfield introduced a resolution appropriating $2,000 for fighting the chestnut bark disease under the direction of the forest commissioner. Referred to the finance committee.

A message was received from Governor Pothier recommending that a resolution be passed submitting the question of a million-dollar bond issue for the construction of state docks to the people. Senator Gorton of Pawtucket introduced a resolution such as desired, and both that and the message went to the judiciary committee.

Senator Greene of Warren introduced a resolution appropriating $2,500 for the repairs of the armory of the Warren Artillery and for uniforms for that command. Referred to the finance committee.

Senator Bennett of Woonsocket introduced a resolution authorizing the city of Woonsocket to appropriate not more than $200 annually for the observance of Memorial day by the United Spanish War Veterans. Referred to the judiciary committee.

In the house the various committees reported back for passage a large number of bills, though none were of special importance. Among these the use of the Newport Armory by the seamen gunners and of the Westerly Armory for a poultry show are approved.

A large number of new bills were also introduced, such as a petition for a change in the ballot law for Warren, the incorporation of the Cheputchet fire district, an appropriation of $25,000 for the State School for Feeble-Minded, a resolution to permit of another automobile show in the State Armory in Providence, a bill providing for biannual elections in the city of Providence, an appropriation of $10,000 for the Rhode Island School of Design, an appropriation of $500 for a Rhode Island corn show, an act to further regulate the speed and use of automobiles, a commission to erect a monument over the grave of Colonel Henry Tillinghast Sisson, and many others of lesser importance.

Mr. Jennings of Cranston introduced an amendment to the General Laws which would give certain additional power to the courts for the issuing of search warrants whereby officers may go out in search of places of gambling. He also introduced a resolution doubling the amount of money available for use by the governor in the detection of crime. The present allotment is $2,500. The first went to the judiciary committee and the second to the finance committee.

Mr. Lawton of Newport presented a petition of 555 Newportiers protesting against the passage of the police commission bill for that city.

Mr. Guilduff of Providence introduced a resolution recommending to Congress the passage of house bill No. 17,751, providing for the inspection of barges and demanding that all such craft shall be thoroughly seaworthy and equipped. He asked immediate consideration, which was granted and the resolution was passed.

The Speaker announced the appointment of Messrs. Atwood of Providence and Sweet of North Providence

RED FLAG ONLY ONE RECOGNIZED.

Industrial Workers Try to Overthrow Government.

Report of California Officials to be Sent to the Immigration Bureau.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 29.—That nearly 60 of the Industrial Workers of the World arrested here have admitted they were trying to overthrow the United States government is a statement contained in a report which the California authorities will send to the immigration bureau at Washington.

An examination of each of the 50 prisoners, nearly all of whom are foreigners, has just been finished by the city authorities. The report states that with scarcely an exception the men declared that they recognized no form of government and no flag except the red one. To the question "What is the red flag symbolical of," the answer was "blood."

At the instance of the local authorities a gun store at Santa Ana was investigated yesterday and more than 1,200 pounds of dynamite found in the building was seized.

"A move on" ordinance went into effect here last night. A crowd that gathered outside the business district was ordered by the police to disperse. Part of the crowd refused, whereupon the officers smashed the speaker's stand and forcibly scattered the gathering.

SERIOUS OUTBREAK IN NANKIN.

PEKIN, March 29.—A report received here from Nankin today says that a serious outbreak has occurred there and the soldiers are looting extensively.

NEW CABINET FORMED.

Premier Tang Receives Presidential Seal of the Republic of China.

NANKIN, March 29.—Premier Tang Shao Yi, as the representative of President Yuan Shi Kai, today received from Dr. Sun Yat Sen the presidential seal of the republic of China. Simultaneously the names and offices of the members of the new cabinet were officially announced. The ceremony, which took place in the small hall of the National Assembly, was impressive. The hall was crowded with members of the assembly and prominent officials of the republican government, Dr. Sun Yat Sen and Premier Tang Shao Yi, with the members of the retiring cabinet, occupied raised seats on the platform. The galleries were filled with guests, including some foreigners.

Dr. Sun Yat Sen issued a message to the people of China asking them to give their loyal support and assistance to the new government. Premier Tang Shao Yi gave an outline of the policies of the new cabinet.

The composition of Premier Tang Shao Yi's new cabinet is as follows: Premier, Tang Shao Yi; Foreign affairs, Lu Cheng Tsiang; finance, Hsiang Hsi Ling; navy, Lin Kwan Hsung; army, Tuan Chi Jui; justice, Wang Chun Hui; communications, Liang Ju Hao; commerce, Chen Chi Mei; interior, Chao Ping Chun; education, Tsai Yuan Pie, agriculture, Sung Chiao Fen.

Premier Tang Shao Yi in the course of his speech said that he hoped the relations of China with the foreign powers would be improved, that commerce would be developed and that peace would be quickly restored to the country.

IT RAINED THIS MORNING.

Weather Conformed to Predictions and Seemed Conducive to Several Vehicular Tragedies.

Again the weather conformed to the predictions and somewhat fooled the public. It rained this morning and at times hard enough to make one think it had not rained in a long time. It is evident that March intends making a record for dampness and that there is still a little moisture left above. The rain stopped about 11 o'clock, and there were signs of a shift of wind from southeast to southwest. Then there were a few more showers and finally, with the wind settled in the southwest, there were signs of clearing, but the signs were not very strong. About all sorts of outdoor work were knocked out, and even the farm hands were in for the afternoon shows. The mud diggers, however, kept on working.

The weather seemed to be conducive to vehicular tragedies this morning. One occurred to a farmer's wagon in the vicinity of Gould street. When the electric light pole at Warner street stopped the northward progress of the wagon and the whiffletree broke the wagon stopped. Something like 10 dozen fresh island eggs were taken out of the market by this runaway. Not far away—to wit, at the fountain by the Soldiers and Sailors monument—there was a narrow escape from a bad smashup as the 8:15 car came down Broadway. A milk wagon turned into Broadway from Equality Park, the motorman and the people in the car supposed the horse would turn down Broadway but, instead, it continued across the street and the track in front of the oncoming car. There were some severe comments on the carelessness of farmers as drivers, and then every one was well shaken up when the motorman, seeing that the horse was going to cross the track, succeeded in bringing the car to a standstill and saved the milk wagon, also the horse. Then it was discovered that there was no driver. About an hour later Jose V. Silvia was looking for a white horse and a milk wagon, a description which fits the outfit that crossed the track and caused the car to stop.

That the farmers might not have all the excitement, E. L. Smith's horse, attached to a delivery wagon, came tearing down Market square and passed onto the ferry float, apparently a good object to rescue. The salt water must have made the horse change his mind, for when his forward hoofs were about six inches from the edge of the ferry bridge he came to a halt. There was no suicide, nor was there any chance for a rescue. The farmer who lost the eggs and whiffletree seems to have been the only one who suffered pecuniary loss.

BIG COAL STRIKE IN SIGHT.

All-Day Cleveland Conferences End in a Deadlock.

CLEVELAND, March 28.—The cessation next Monday of work in all bituminous coal mines operated by union men, to be followed by a strike involving 500,000 men in the soft and hard coal fields, became an imminent prospect tonight, after all-day conferences which ended in a deadlock. The lack of any steps toward an immediate settlement, and the fact that only three more days intervene before both the anthracite and the bituminous wage scales expire, were said to make it almost certain that a widespread stoppage of coal production will begin next week for an uncertain period. The situation tonight was outlined as follows:

The miners in the anthracite fields of Pennsylvania will quit Sunday midnight because their agreements with the operators expire at that time, and no new agreement, even if it were being considered, could be put into effect in time to prevent the suspension. The union officials say the suspension will virtually be a strike.

The contracts of the miners in the bituminous regions also expire Sunday midnight, and they probably will suspend because they have no new agreement on which to continue.

Officials of the union assert that if a strike in both classes of mines is called it will entail a loss in pay to the men of about $1,000,000 a day.

A conference held in the hope that a strike, or even a suspension, in the bituminous mines might still be averted was without result up to tonight.

The operators and miners of western Pennsylvania, Indiana, Ohio and Illinois, who are trying to fix a wage and working scale, not only for their own districts, but also as the basis for all other unionized bituminous districts, then adjourned until tomorrow morning.

To bring the situation to a crisis, John Walker, president of the Illinois miners, proposed that the miners drop all their demands and make a new demand for an increase for five cents a ton for all coal mined. He explained that his proposal did not come jointly from the miners, but he made it on his own responsibility, "to avoid a prolonged industrial struggle."

The operators' party to the conference then called for an adjournment and, after meeting alone, explained that they had decided to stand by their original position to continue the present scale for two years, and had nothing more to offer. That is the ultimatum they said, which will be delivered to the miners at the final conference tomorrow.

"I look for a break off of all negotiations tomorrow," said H. M. Taylor, president of the Illinois operators. "It would have come today had it not been that we did not want to appear to be in haste in bringing about a strike. We will offer no further compromise."

NO STRIKE IN NEW BEDFORD.

Cotton Mill Operatives' Demand for Wage Increase Granted.

NEW BEDFORD, March 28.—By granting an increase of ten per cent in wages—the full amount demanded by the cotton mill operatives here—the Manufacturers' Association late today averted a general strike of 30,000 workers. It is announced that the new wage schedule will be effective from March 25. The announcement of the advance was received joyfully by all classes of operatives. The weavers and several other unions held jubilation meetings tonight. Formal action by the unions in accepting the increase will be taken later in the week.

Recently the Manufacturers' Association offered a five per cent increase, explaining in a letter to the Textile Council representing the labor unions that, on account of dull conditions of business generally, and the fact that the mills have been compelled to curtail production during the past year, no larger increase was justified. In reply the unions rejected this offer and presented a demand for a raise of ten per cent.

The demand was looked upon generally as in the nature of an ultimatum, and union leaders declared that a general strike would follow a refusal. The cry "ten per cent, or strike," was heard frequently at labor meetings and on the street. The manufacturers are said to have been divided on the question of granting the additional five per cent, some of them desiring to try the effect of a compromise offer of two and a half per cent additional. They have held various meetings to discuss the situation, but final action was deferred until today, when the full demand of the unions was granted.

The 61 fine cotton goods mills in New Bedford represent a total capital of over $36,000,000. They operate 1,000,000 spindles.

LORIMER EXONERATED.

Taint of Scandal Removed, Also, from Men Connected With Him.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—A sweeping exoneration of Senator William Lorimer of Illinois was the verdict returned today by a vote of 5 to 3, by the Senate committee on inquiry into charges of corrupt election methods brought against him. The Senator's vindication is the record since his election by the state legislature in 1909, with which the investigators have concerned themselves to the accompaniment of a widespread public demand. The alignment of the committee stood unchanged on all vital points. Mr. Lorimer's judges not only exonerate him, but they exculpate almost every other individual on his side upon whom the taint of scandal has rested since the inquiry began. The committee's action also discredits the tales of the "jack pot" and corruption funds.

Edward Hines, the millionaire lumber man, referred to in the investigation as "the man who put Lorimer over," was vindicated by the committee. It was charged that Hines raised a corruption fund of $100,000 to elect Lorimer to the Senate. The majority exculpated him and adopted a resolution that the evidence showed that he did not raise or contribute any sum improperly.

The majority held that no new evidence was adduced to justify a reversal of the Senate's previous action in Senator Lorimer's favor; that there was no evidence of a "jack pot" in the Illinois Assembly of 1909 in respect to his election, and flatly that no corrupt practices were shown by the investigation.

The case will be put squarely before the Senate, probably next week, when a protracted debate will begin. Neither side has made a thorough canvass of the situation. Republican leaders pointed out that there will be about 27 new Senators to vote on the case, in addition to those who have already voted in substantially the same charges.

TRIED BY WOMEN JURORS.

San Francisco Lawyer Wins in Case Brought by a Tailoring Firm.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 28.—Twelve women jurors in a justice court decided that, unless a tailor-made suit fits perfectly, the man who ordered it need not pay the tailor full price. As a result G. W. Von Schrader, Jr., an attorney, will not have to pay a balance of $69 for which he was sued by a tailoring firm. Von Schrader demanded that his case be tried by a jury of women, the first to be empaneled in San Francisco. Before them Von Schrader, clad in the suit, twisted and turned and paraded.

PORTSMOUTH.

Judge Reserves Decision in the Sisson Equity Actions Tried in Fall River Court.

[Regular correspondence of The News.]

The equity actions of James Archie Sisson vs. Carrie E. Sisson et al, and Fritz C. Cross, petr., vs. James A. Sisson were tried in the superior court, Fall River, Tuesday afternoon under Judge Crosby. Attorney A. S. Phillips of this town is Mr. Sisson's representative. Mr. Sisson asks that his wife and her brother, Fritz C. Cross, be appointed trustees of a half interest in a farm in Rehoboth, which was conveyed to himself and wife as tenants in common about three years ago. They have now separated, Mrs. Sisson keeping house for her brother, to whom she has deeded her half interest in the farm for which he has now brought partition proceedings.

Mr. and Mrs. Sisson were natives of Portsmouth and resided here for some time after their marriage at the Sisson homestead at Mill Water brook, later living in Little Compton, Newport and Somerville, Mass. While living in Somerville Mr. Sisson became a Pullman car conductor, receiving $90 a month; but, losing the sight of one of his eyes in a wreck, he was obliged to relinquish the position. At the time Mr. Sisson was given the deed of the farm he did not know his wife was named in it nor did he until she wrote to him in regard to making some sort of a settlement about the farm.

The case was continued until Wednesday afternoon, when other witnesses were put on the stand and two depositions read, one from Mrs. Christiana Sisson of Middletown, aunt of Mr. Sisson. The judge reserved his decision, but advised them to try to patch up matters. Having lived together for 30 years, he thought they might.

Mrs. John Geisler and three children are visiting Mrs. Geisler's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Fremont Grinnell, on Freeborn street, while her husband, Rev. Mr. Geisler, is attending the New England Southern Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Providence.

The Ladies' Benevolent Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church held its regular meeting Thursday afternoon and evening. A supper of beans, brown bread, cake, pie, tea and coffee was served to a large number. Several guests were present.

The Ladies' Association of St. Paul's Church met with Mrs. John L. Borden Thursday afternoon, and St. Paul's Guild met with Mrs. Joseph Souza the same afternoon.

The King's Daughters met with Mrs. Abner P. Lawton Thursday afternoon, and the meeting was well attended.

Among those present at the wedding of Mr. Eugene Chase, Jr., of this town and Miss Anne Louise Batty of Pawtucket Wednesday afternoon were Mrs. Batty and son Thomas, of Aubrey, Manchester, England, the bride's grandmother and uncle, respectively, and relatives and friends from Walpole, Cambridge and Norwood, Mass., and Portsmouth and Kingston, R. I.

Mr. Walter Brinkman, engineer at the power house, is ill and under the care of a physician.

Mrs. Howard A. Pierce of Tiverton is ill and confined to bed, and her mother, Mrs. William B. Clarke, is caring for her.

Large catches of flat fish are being made in the Sakonnet river and peddled from house to house, according to the custom in vogue for many years, but of late generally discarded.

Crawford Ranges

These Ranges are the standard by which other stoves are measured. Other makers copy them wherever possible—but some things they can't copy as we own the patents.

The many Crawford trouble saving devices—the wonderful Single Damper—(patented), Cup-Joint Oven Flues, which heat the oven in every part alike, Grates (patented), Ash Hod (patented), etc.—are all at your service without extra cost.

Every part of a Crawford range is designed with the greatest care, to fully meet the demands upon it; in fact, stronger than it really need to be. This insures against the liability of frequent and expensive repairs so common to ordinary ranges. If you buy a Crawford, you will have the most perfect range made. STATE TO TAKE STRUCURES.

The Stone Bridge Excepted in Act Providing for Supervision by Board of Public Roads.

An unusually comprehensive plan, providing for the taking over by the state of all bridges that are a part of the highways of the state and adding them to the state highway system, is embodied in the report on the condition and needs of the Barrington and Warren bridges, presented in the senate yesterday by Senator Edward E. Arnold, the chairman of the joint legislative commission which had the matter in charge. The other members of the commission were Representative Clarence A. Greene and former Representative Henry F. Baldwin, both of Providence. The report was accompanied by a resolution making an appropriation of $200,000 for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of an act which also accompanied the report and provided for taking on those bridges.

This act places all bridges along state highways in the state highway system and under the supervision of the State Board of Public Roads, although the towns or cities in which they are located are to exercise a general supervision over them and to keep them clear of snow in the winter time, as well as to notify the state board when they are in need of repairs.

Under this act whatever money is expended by the state board in the repairs, construction or re-construction of such bridges is paid by the state at the outset, but one half of this expense is apportioned in part to the towns or cities where the bridges are located and the balance to the public utilities which make use of the bridges, the latter amount to be assigned by the Public Utilities Commission.

There are three exceptions to the provisions of the act, Red Bridge and Washington Bridge in Providence, and the Rhode Island Stone Bridge at Tiverton.

THE DUSTMAN.

[Baltimore Sun.]

Over some he sprinkles gold,
Over some he sprinkles gray:
On his courser swift and bold
He is riding day by day.
Over some he sprinkles joy,
Over some he sprinkles care;
What is that you say, my boy,
He's already touched my hair?

Over some he sprinkles dust
Of the dreams of happy life;
Over some he sprinkles trust
In the bloom beyond the strife.
Unannounced and unproclaimed
From mysterious places far
He has come all unashamed,
And he makes us what we are.

Never think of him at all,
Never worry, never mind;
If his dust in silence fall,
Then he wishes to be kind,
And, indeed, 'tis best for me
And for you to never know
How he brings the dust of glee,
How he brings the dust of woe.

Over some he sprinkles spring,
Over some he sprinkles fall:
In the end he'll surely bring
Dust of gray to crown us all.
Dust of dreams are in his pall,
Dust of love for those who fall,
Dust of hopes for weary head;
Dust of victory for the dead.

Why doctors recommend light-colored Cocoa

COCOA—such as you usually buy—contains a large percentage of heavy indigestible oil. The darker the cocoa the more oil it contains. Doctors say this oil adds nothing to the flavor and makes the cocoa less easy to digest. Delicacy of aroma, the exquisitely refined flavor of cocoa, can best be had when the excess of oil is removed.

Dr. Faussett, M.D., F.R.C.S.I., a noted British expert, says: "Cocoa, when pure and deprived of an excess of fatty matter, abounds in every material necessary to the growth, development and sustenance of the body."

"The oil of cocoa does not belong to the food fats and is not capable of deposit as a food in animal tissue." Dr. W. S. Hall, in Nutrition and Dietetics.

Dr. John Muter, Ph.D., F.S.C., says of cocoa: "Given the removal of a greater portion of the fat (oil), the other constituents are positively concentrated in a high degree."

Cocoa has long had an enviable reputation as a health sustaining, strength-giving beverage. It is a food for brain, nerve and muscle—not a stimulant.

The one drawback to its universal adoption has been this large percentage of indigestible oil, which makes cocoa dark in color.

Ever since the food value of cocoa has been known, manufacturers have tried to get rid of this heavy darkening oil. Finally, by a special process—and the aid of modern machinery—we have solved the problem, removed the excess of oil and given to the world its first perfect cocoa.

Rockwood's Cocoa

"The healthful cocoa with the lighter color"

Gives to mankind its most nourishing and delicious beverage. An absolutely pure cocoa; different from all others because the excess of indigestible oil has been removed. As delicious in flavor as the finest chocolate. The best drink for the athlete or the invalid—for children or old age.

Rockwood's Cocoa, used daily, means health, steady nerves, a better appetite and increased vitality.

For children, the ideal drink, if you would have them grow up strong and sturdy. Better for them than milk; more sustaining than meat or eggs. Rockwood's is the cocoa that will agree with you. Its light color proves its perfect digestibility.

(At all first-class grocers)

H. MIDWOOD'S SONS COMPANY

Distributors PROVIDENCE, R. I.

Rockwood's Cocoa comes in 1-pound cans and in smaller sizes. The smallest size—5 cents—can be bought singly, or six in a box. These little cans make it easy to test the superiority of a light-colored cocoa.

This Test Proves It

This freedom of Rockwood's Cocoa from excessive oil ("cocoa butter") is easily proved—you can do it yourself in a few seconds.

Place a pinch of Rockwood's and an equal pinch of any other cocoa on a piece of soft paper. Fold the paper over the cocoa and press with a hot flat-iron, pressing over both cocoas equally. Open the paper and observe how much more oil you get from the other kind. If you do this test properly, the big, dark grease mark shows you how much indigestible cocoa butter you take into your stomach unless you drink Rockwood's—the healthful cocoa with the lighter color.

Don't drink this heavy oil—drink the only pure cocoa—drink Rockwood's for a few weeks and see for yourself how fully it delights you, nourishes you, sustains you.

"BEYOND THE LAW."

English Prize Novel Dealing With Persecution of Catholics in Ireland.

"Beyond the Law," by Miriam Alexander, won the prize of $1,250 in the Andrew Melrose novel competition in England and has been endorsed by such writers as W. J. Locke, A. C. Benson and A. E. W. Mason. It is not a pleasant story, dealing as it does with the persecution of the Catholics in Ireland when William of Orange sat on the English throne. The pages are filled with cruel deeds, bitter hatred and black revenge. There are many dramatic scenes and thrilling incidents, while the love theme is rather unusual, the heroine lacking many of the qualities generally possessed by heroines.

The author knows Ireland well. Her sympathetic treatment of that land, her characterization of the people, their habits and traditions show a knowledge based on personal observation and experience. The picture she draws of that unhappy country in the days of religious persecution by the Protestants is grim and tragic. The desolation of the countryside and the cowed state of the Catholic population, having lost all courage and ambition, is vividly presented.

The story has to do with the revenge planned by young Dermot Hyronan against Albrect van der Wynykt, who had killed his mother and confiscated her property. Dermot was only a small boy when the tragedy happened, but it burned deep into his heart and he vowed vengeance against the cruel Dutchman. Years passed before he could put his threat into execution, and even when he returned to his native land obstacles prevented its accomplishment. The young man's hatred against Wynykt and his thirst for revenge color his whole life with melancholy and sadness, yet he has many good qualities of heart and mind. The love story is a singular affair, and not without interest.

Van der Wynykt is a sensual, brutish man, whose fiendish cruelty is too horrible to relate. The fear he inspires in the Catholic peasantry and gentry alike is a terrible thing, but after many years of tyranny and oppression he is obsessed by fear himself, and no man can come near him. His fate is regretted by none.

Barry Fitzulick is a typical young Irishman, brave, reckless, happy-go-lucky, in direct contrast to his friend, Dermot. As the author says: "He was the one type that Ireland always has produced and always will produce—a symbol of the eternal youth of her, which is at once her salvation and her ruin."

TEN PAGES.

THE COST OF TUBERCULOSIS.

It has been found, by a careful investigation made by physicians of the Boston Consumptives Hospital, that 500 male victims of tuberculosis in that city cost the city in loss of wages and institutional care half a million dollars, or about $1,000 each. This loss was determined by the study of half a thousand cases selected at random from men who had visited the dispensary of the hospital during the past five years. About half these persons had died before this investigation was begun and nearly 50 per cent of the victims were between 20 and 40 years of age. It was found that each of the men who had died had lost on an average 58 weeks of work from the time the disease set in until death relieved the patient. The average weekly wages of these men were a trifle less than $12 and their total loss was $170,965. Those who were still living had each lost on an average 69 weeks of work, at an average rate about the same as in the case of those who died, or a total of $255,074, making $426,039 lost in wages alone by both groups of victims of the disease.

In addition to this large sum it cost Boston $73,954 to care for these 500 men in its public hospitals and other institutions, and this community loss is exclusive of the large sums spent by private organizations on about four fifths of these cases. More than four fifths of these men had families with an average of a fraction more than four each, and 161 families had no income of any sort during the period of complete disability of the patient, while the total weekly income previous to this stage was $1,877.75. If to all these were added the "capitalized value of the earnings cut off by death" it is estimated that the loss of the dead cases alone would bring the total to nearly $3,000,000 and if to these 500 cases studied were added the 15,000 other living patients in Boston the loss to individuals and to the city it is estimated would amount to many millions.

These figures it is claimed show why communities should not hesitate on the score of expense to attack the tuberculosis problem and to spend much money for that purpose.

THE SIMPLE LIFE.

One hears so often, in these modern days of constant rush and hurry, of the pleasures and happiness of the simple life and how all are longing for it and wishing they might be permitted to live it. Yet it is a question if many of these people who talk so much about it really would be content even if they were in a position to leave at business once and give up the excitement of city life, with its hustle and noise, its pleasures as well as its work, and live the simple life which is called the natural life. The fact that the simple life is the happiest is often obvious, but it is noticeable that those who talk most about its charms are the men who are amassing much money and whose mania for more shows no sign of abating in its feverish intensity, and who do not know the meaning of the word sympathy in any sense. The simple life has a charm for them in theory, because they do not realize what it means and would not live it if they gave themselves the opportunity to do so. They would not be content with it and would fail to find it the happiest and most healthful manner of living they would soon tire of it and long for the more complex activities of society and civilization, as they term the busy, hustling extravagant life of the city.

Of course this is not so in every case and the simple life has its lasting charm for many people who have left the city and taken up their residence in apart of the country where they can have and enjoy the people they call real friends and who prove that they are such, where they can live close to the great out-of-doors, can entertain and be entertained in the quiet manner which bespeaks true hospitality, and can gain health, enjoyment and happiness in the more simple manner of living. There are few in comparison with those who claim that they long for the simple life but do not in any way try to attain it. Simplicity is not only the key-note of happiness, health and peace of mind, but also of right living. It is perhaps what we all long for in a sense, but what few make any effort to attain.

A YELL WHICH WON'T DO.

"Wellesley" rhymes so perfectly with "yellsly" that there should be no trouble in inventing a soul-stirring and mouth-filling shout for the women's college having the former name. The obvious ear tickler which we have suggested has been overlooked by the committee seeking a new paean for the institution and the yell which has been proposed is plainly impracticable. It begins with the couplet

"Soap suds, soda water, joy, joy, joy!
College girls all adore boy, boy, boy!"

It is not surprising to be told that "the girls have not yet decided whether they will give such prominence to the 'boy'." Of course they won't. The spirit of feminism is rampant, and if feminism blushed at all—which it doesn't—it would blush at acknowledging any inclination toward the opposite sex. Feminism is perfectly independent of the "male of the species" and revolts at the idea of admitting any such old-fashioned sentiment as adoration of the "boy."

That is not the only fault of this absurd and archaic yell. What has the modern woman to do with soap suds? This is the age of laundries, as it is of bakeries and textile mills and all the other commercial industries which have taken the place of the domestic industries, once universal and now obsolete. The modern woman is an independent of soap suds as she is of man. There is none of the spirit of the present day in this proposed college yell.

Of course there is a little of the eternal feminine in "soda water" and in "feathers," which is the last word of the yell dragged in without connection with any of those preceding. Yet even soda water and feathers, pertinent as they are to the aspirations of young womanhood on the road to learning and the higher life, cannot save a yell which begins with the washtub and gives such an undeserved prominent place to the young man of the period.

If the Wellesley girls wish a yell which will "have an encouraging effect upon the college athletes when battling for alma mater," and will also be "built along the lines of humor," they must try again.

TRADING AT THE BIG MARKETS.

The dealers in the Washington Market in New York have recently compiled a table showing that their customers last year saved nearly $4,000,000 by not trading with the meat and provision stores scattered all over the city. They claim that their prices were 10 per cent lower than those of the scattered stores.

This is apparently an argument for trading with the big markets and not with the meat and provision man around the corner, but this remedy for the high cost of living is not susceptible of universal application. New York is a large place and distances are great. People cannot go from all over town to a big market near the lower end of the city, in order to save 10 per cent. Car fares would eat up a good deal of the saving, and for a large part of the population the time involved would be an insuperable objection, apart from the problem of the customer's carrying home her basket of purchases.

Yet there is no doubt that we pay pretty high for the convenience of having goods delivered at the door, and a good deal of this is not absolutely necessary. People who could go to a central market and carry home their food will not do it because it is easier to pay a higher price and buy things near by and have them delivered.

The delivery of goods from department stores costs eight to ten cents a package. The customer is not conscious of paying this, because the price is the same whether she carries her purchase home or has it delivered. Yet it is not entirely certain that if the delivery system were abandoned the customer would procure her goods cheaper. The argument of the merchant is that by delivering goods he does a far larger amount of business than he could secure otherwise, and this enables him to sell at a closer profit, paying the cost of delivery. He usually claims to sell for less than the small dealer who does not deliver, but who must make his profits off a much smaller volume of trade.

How far these claims are justified is a delicate matter to say, but with our deliveries, trolleys and telephones, and all the other modern improvements, we save a great deal of trouble and provide ourselves with innumerable conveniences unknown to previous generations. If when we foot up the bills we conclude that it costs us more to live than it cost our fathers and mothers, we may suspect that we are paying for the ease and comfort.

In regard to the expense of living the evidence is not all on one side. Every once in a while somebody brings out an old account book and shows how much more butter and eggs cost a long time ago than they do now. Certainly prices were not low in the era of depreciated paper money. Whatever may be the reason for the recent increases—and merchants, economists and political investigators are at sea about this—we buy many more things than our ancestors did, and of course we must pay for them. There is some force in the remark of James J. Hill that the problem is not the high cost of living, but the cost of high living.

The National House of Representatives has passed a bill which is intended to tax out of existence all factories which make white and yellow phosphorous matches, the fumes of which cause a disease known as "phossy jaw" which is fatal to the workmen. It was urged against the bill that it would build up in this country a great match trust, since only the Diamond Match Company and a little company known as the Salvation Match Company in New Jersey possess formulas for making matches by any other than the white or yellow phosphorous process. The measure received only 30 negatives votes in the House, 166 members voting for its passage.

The willingness of the anthracite coal operatives to meet the representatives of the miners to re-open the conferences gives hope that the differences between operators and operatives may be settled and a strike averted. A powerful impetus to the demand of commerce and industry that a strike be averted was given at Thursday evening's meeting of mayors representing 1,500,000 residents of the anthracite coal regions, where President Taft was called on to force arbitration and prevent such a staggering industrial convulsion as that which is shaking Great Britain.

Exemplification of the "health marriage" movement started by Dean Sumner of Chicago was found Thursday in Lynn, where John Charles Thompson, the son of wealthy parents, was refused a license to marry Miss Violet Wade, who had come from Chicago for the ceremony. Thompson's parents protested against the issuance of the license on the ground that the young man (he is 80 years of age) is in poor health, owing to an injury to his head, received about six months ago.

The women have won in Michigan the opportunity for a vote on a constitutional amendment giving them the right to vote. It, of course, remains for the present voters of Michigan to grant this privilege to the women. The amendment will be voted upon at the elections next November.

There ought to be no lack of water in the springs and ponds this coming summer. The reservoirs have rarely been so full, and waste water has been running over the spillways continually since the heavy rain of two weeks ago. The rain today is not really needed.

It is said in Providence that the state police bill was defeated because of the general feeling that the sheriffs and deputy sheriffs can do all that a state police could, and that there is no need of other state officers.

Twelve women jurors in a justice court in San Francisco decided that unless a tailor-made suit fits perfectly the man who ordered it need not pay the tailor full price. That settles it.

New Bedford gets in line with Fall River and Rhode Island in giving an increase in wages to its mill operatives.

To Colonel Roosevelt, all men apparently are liars who do not agree with him.

DISCONTENT OF THE FRENCH.

A Rapidly Rising Tide of Revolution Caused by the Empty Stockings of the People.

[Hampton's Magazine.]

Formerly, the miners' wives in the northern part of France were law-abiding and orderly. But of late they have been marching through towns and villages, with red and black flags flying, pillaging grocers' and bakers' shops, sacking butchers' stores and market stalls and devastating the premises of those who refuse to surrender their farm produce without a struggle. This has happened, not in one town or village, but in hundreds upon hundreds of them, in all parts of France. From south, west and east, as well as from the north, come stories of collisions between the housewives on the one side and the farmers, the bakers, the butchers and food-stuff venders on the other; collisions from which the soldiers and policemen assigned to the difficult duty of preserving order emerge with heads broken by bricks, stones and cudgels.

The war cry of these housewives is "death to those who starve us!" and as time goes on the wrath of these feminine furies, and of their followers, is no longer restricted to the mere farmers, and food-stuff venders, but extends to all those who seem to be well to do, and to enjoy any sort of affluence.

The farmers explain the rise in prices of produce by the exceptionally bad summer last year, when the drought was so great that it was impossible to obtain any fodder, cattle foods consequently rising to a premium, while the vegetable crops were starved for want of rain, and the little produce raised had to be sold at a high price in order to keep the farms going. Then, too, France had been visited with cholera during the past year by an epidemic of foot and mouth disease, the devastating effects of which were widespread. And finally, the farmers complain of the constantly growing burden of taxation of one sort or another.

The food-stuff venders naturally decline to sell the farm produce at a loss, and insist on a profit, and thus it is that the commonest articles of food, even bread and milk, are getting beyond the means of the toiling masses.

When all things are taken into consideration, it does not seem that even the new cabinet in France will be able to accomplish anything sufficient to stem the rapidly rising tide of revolution, arising from the empty stocking. It cannot, without scaring capital out of the country, arbitrarily decree the price of food, in such a fashion as to bring it within the reach of the masses, just as little as it can compel the employers of the latter to grant them a living wage.

Nor can the government reduce the national debt charges, and the general taxation, in the face of an ever-increasing annual deficit, and a stagnation, if not an actual decrease in the growth of the population contributing the revenue of the nation. Finally, the government cannot undertake to fill the empty stocking of the housewife, and this being the case, there seems to be no effective remedy in sight, or even possible.

Death of William B. Weeden and Rev. Benjamin W. Atwell.

$300,000 More for Providence Water Front—Utter to Address Indians—Speakers at Brown.

William Babcock Weeden, veteran of the Civil war, retired wool merchant and manufacturer, director in banks and author of considerable note, died at his home in Providence Thursday, in his seventy-eighth year. Mr. Weeden was apparently in good health up to Tuesday night, when he was seized with a paralytic shock. He failed to rally, and the end came yesterday morning at 5 o'clock. In his death, Providence loses one of its most upright citizens, by whose efforts the woolen business was greatly expanded and through whose advice the investments of the various banking institutions with which he was connected were greatly strengthened. Although Mr. Weeden severed his active connection with manufacturing affairs in 1902, and also put aside most of his business responsibilities, he still continued to retain an interest in them. Since leaving active business, he had devoted himself almost entirely to literary and historical pursuits, publishing several books, his latest being "Early Rhode Island." His most widely known work was "Economic and Social History of New England," a book which is found in nearly every library and is frequently used as a reference work. Although not a graduate of Brown University, leaving there before he completed his course in order to enter business, he was afterward given the honorary degree of master of arts. He was always greatly interested in the college, and was a frequent contributor to its funds.

Rev. Benjamin Warren Atwell, D. D., formerly connected with Grace Church, Providence, and widely known among the Episcopalian clergy, died suddenly at his daughter's home in Newton, Mass., yesterday of heart trouble. He was in his 74th year and was a native of Wakefield, Mass., and a son of Joseph W. Atwell.

A call for $300,000 more to complete the work of developing the water front of Providence will be made by the committee on city engineer's department at the session of the common council Monday night. At that session a resolution will be presented by the committee directing the city solicitor to apply to the General Assembly for authority to hire that amount for the completion of the work. The resolution will be accompanied by a report of the progress already made on the Field's Point retaining wall project, and it will be pointed out that, while the wall under way at present under the first appropriation of $450,000, is of 1,470 feet length, there still remains 1,526 feet to be given out on contract in order to make the plan complete. The report states, too, that with that addition Providence will be in possession of 2,996 feet of continuous wall and wharf, part of which is sought by the Southern New England Railway Company.

Congressman Utter will address the graduation class of the Indian School at Carlisle, Pa., next Sunday. "The students at this remarkable school," said Mr. Utter, "are not being trained merely for their benefit, but for the benefit that they may be to others of their race when they return to their native states to take up their life work, and it is this that I want to impress upon the Indian graduates. I am told that, although a large number of these educated Indians revert to a considerable extent to their former modes of living, many of them take prominent places in the cities and towns of the states from which they come."

Announcement was made yesterday of the choice by members of the faculty of three of the four commencement speakers at Brown University in June. The men chosen are Daniel Lucius Brown of Norwich, Conn.; William Henderson Robertson of Lonsdale, and John Henry Williams of North Adams, Mass. All three are prominent in the class and have taken active part in class and undergraduate activities. The fourth Commencement speaker will be the winner of the Gaston prize medal for excellence in oratory. The public competition for this prize will be held May 7, when a committee of three, to be named by President Faunce, will give its decision as to the winner among six competitors, who will be selected for the final contest.

A gain of 4,000 in the Catholic population of Rhode Island, now reported to be 255,000 persons, is shown in the 1912 edition of "Kennedy's Official Catholic Directory," just made public. This is a gain of nearly 1.6 per cent during the year. According to the last census, made in 1910, Rhode Island's population was increasing 2.6 per cent annually. The directory is authority for the statement that the present Catholic population of the country is 15,015,569—a gain of 396,808 during the last year. This total includes 17,647 Catholic priests—a gain of 407—and they serve a total of 13,939 churches in the United States. In the list of clergy are 14 archbishops, two titular archbishops, 97 bishops, two archabbots and 17 abbots. New York state, with 2,778,076, has the most Catholics, in New England, Massachusetts is said to have 1,381,212; Connecticut 412,973; New Hampshire 126,034, and Maine 123,547.

William Mathers, Jr., the 12-year-old Marieville boy whose body, badly mutilated, was found in the brushland about 200 yards from Mineral Spring avenue Wednesday night, was killed by some one very little older than himself, according to the belief by the police. Developments point strongly to this conclusion. A rubber bearing what are believed to be stains of blood was found on the top of Moses Angell hill by Special Constable Walter Lefebvre Thursday afternoon. It was of boy's size, but of a different make from those belonging to the murdered lad, both of which were recovered by the police Wednesday night. Five base ball bats were also found hidden back of a huge boulder near the scene of the crime, and one of these bats is dark with the stains of some substance believed to be blood. They were taken to the Marieville schoolhouse and later turned over to the police.

INDIFFERENCE AT THE BOTTOM.

Failure of Old Police Commission and Need of New.

Clark Burdick Tells Presbyterian Brotherhood Plain Truths About Conditions in Newport.

Mr. Clark Burdick addressed the Men's Brotherhood of the First Presbyterian Church Thursday evening on the subject of the proposed police commission. At the outset the speaker stated that he had prepared no set address, proposing rather to give a little talk on the subject of the police commission, and the need of such a body in Newport.

The meeting was opened by Mr. Daniel Smith, president of the Brotherhood, who afterwards gave way to the pastor, Rev. N. J. Sproul, who introduced the speaker.

The objection against the old police commission said Mr. Burdick, was the cry of home rule, which had so powerful an influence that when the charter was invoked to make Newport a model city the commission was wiped out. The objections against the commission were threefold—first, that it was a novel idea; second, that it was opposed to the principle of home rule, inasmuch as the appointments are left to the governor, and third, that the commissioners were not all that they should be.

These objections do not apply to the act now before the judiciary committee of the house. Mr. Burdick referred to the fact that people who live here have the idea that Newport is a peculiar place and, because of the city being a recreation ground, the laws cannot be strictly enforced. As the result of this spirit of indifference which has grown up among us, Newport has had to bow its head in shame. It behooves us to be careful, for, because of the city's prominence, the conditions here are spread broadcast over the world.

"I need not say that legal prosecution existed of rum sold illegally, of houses of ill repute, of gambling going on and, worst of all, of hell houses on our principal streets, leading young men and women to ruin. The police of course knew it, and those in charge of the police knew the conditions. If so, why did they exist? I think on account of our indifference. Simply because these conditions have not ruined our homes, or emptied our pockets books, we don't care."

Starting with the idea that Newport is a pleasure ground, an atmosphere of indifference has crept up about us, and a certain gang or combine, of whatever one has a mind to call it, has us in its clutch, and, because of our indifference also, we have not thrown off the yoke.

The conditions in Newport have been going on for years, said Mr. Burdick. He cited an instance when the sheriff called on a certain notorious landlady and told her she must close, on orders of the governor. She called up certain authorities and asked what it meant that she should have to close under the circumstances which existed. In other words, she was looking to the police for protection and, if so, there must have been some reason.

Newport people have put these men in office. Do they want to keep them there? Even so, things cannot continue as they are; the minority have some rights. The supreme court has decided that the matter of enforcement of law in any locality is a state matter, and the state will see to it that the laws of a community are enforced if the authorities do not. Can we hope for any benefit from our local authorities? The answer would seem to be "No." To whom shall we look, then? Those in charge of the police have failed. Shall we depend upon the governor to keep an eye down here on Newport? Is that reasonable? Can he continue to enforce the law? What the governor has done can be done by local authorities. It would seem that the only remedy is in a police commission, appointed by the governor.

A bill has been framed and presented to the house of representatives, and now lingers on the files of the judiciary committee. About 100 men have asked for its passage. We are told that 1,000 men have signed a petition against it. Now it might be well to look into that petition of 1,000 and see how the names were obtained. Practically all were secured by one man, one of our present license commissioners, champion of our present regime and the manager of Mayor Boyle's campaign.

It seems strange that there are 1,000 men who wish the present conditions to exist, and those names were obtained possibly under a mistaken sense of the significance of affairs. The police commission is not a new thing; it has accomplished much in Providence, in Central Falls and in Pawtucket, and last year in Woonsocket, the home of Governor Pothier, where it has demanded the respect of all by its work.

I believe, said Mr. Burdick, that the licensed liquor dealers of Newport, if they expressed their candid, honest opinion, would favor the police commission, but their hands are tied. So also would the police; they are human, like the rest of us, but their mouths are closed. The conditions here are bad, and we cannot hope for a cure by the local authorities. The police commissioners would not be appointed for political purposes, but would be a clean, honest board.

Mr. Burdick then explained the proposed police commission act and its provisions. The result of such a commission is that the liquor traffic and other evils will be controlled. The gambling, liquor and other interests will be compelled to keep their hands out of politics, and in a few years we are going to have an honest city government which we can respect. This seems the only solution out of the situation we are now in, said Mr. Burdick in conclusion.

Various questions were put to the speaker after he had finished. One man said he considered conditions very bad in Newport, but did not believe the police commission would make them any better. He asked if it would do away with the license commission, and was told that it would, to which he remarked: "Well that's something to be thankful for." Another wished to know if the sending out of names favoring the act would not hasten it, and was told that it probably would. Mr. Burdick said the fact that the bill had been lingering so long in the committee was a dangerous indication, but "I have great faith in the governor," said he.

MR. FREEBORNE CALLED TO NEW BEDFORD.

The directors of the New Bedford Young Men's Christian Association have extended a call to Mr. T. Laurence Freeborne, formerly of this city, to be physical director of the association, to succeed Mr. George T. Ferguson. Mr. Freeborne is a graduate of the Newport Young Men's Christian Association gymnasium, and was for a number of years physical director here, succeeding Dr. William Burdick. He has been physical director at Plattsburg, N. Y., Rutland, Vt., and Saratoga, N. Y., and for the last six and a half years has been in charge of the gymnasium at Cambridge. The New Bedford Mercury says, "Mr. Freeborne was recommended to the local Young Men's Christian Association as being a man who would most successfully take the place of the physical director who has done such excellent work."

Mr. Freeborne is a son of Mrs. Thomas W. Freeborne of this city, and is expected to accept the new position in a few days.

SHOOTING ACCIDENTAL.

Coroner Agrees with Police Authorities, and Matter Now Up to the Attorney General.

Coroner McMahon today filed with the clerk of the superior court his findings in regard to the shooting of Private Edward K. Jones of the one hundred and twenty-ninth company, coast artillery, by Officer John C. Gentile in the early hours of Saturday March 9. As before reported, 35 witnesses testified before the coroner, and about 35,000 words of evidence go to make up the report of the testimony. The investigation was as thorough as Coroner McMahon could make it, and at the close he finds the same as the police authorities found after they had looked into the matter—that the shooting was accidental.

The matter is now up to the attorney general. If he, after looking over the evidence, feels that further action should be taken, he has the right and authority to proceed further.

A VARIED ENTERTAINMENT.

Social Centre Closes with Interesting Program and Creditable Exhibit at Coddington.

The social centre, a device intended for the entertainment and instruction of working girls, which has for the past four months held regular sessions in the Coddington School building, was brought to a close Thursday evening by a social gathering of the members and their friends. There were singing, dancing, gymnastic exercises and some display of dramatic art. There was also an exhibition of millinery and dressmaking. The members of the centre, which have numbered as high as 75, have been schooled in these various attainments during the winter by a large number of volunteers, and while it has afforded the girls a place to spend the evenings it has also given them an opportunity to acquire some attainments which they would not have had by roaming the streets or flocking to the dance halls and picture shows. The members seem very grateful for what has been done for them, and appreciate the fact that they have really bettered their condition in life by the instruction they have received. This sort of school has been run in such a way that it has seemed more of an entertainment than a school. The centre was established by the Civic League, and will probably be one of its regular branches of work.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Rev. Roderick Terry left for New York this morning.

—Mr. and Mrs. George Gordon King arrived yesterday afternoon for a short visit.

—Mr. William Storrs Wells arrived yesterday to look over his cottage, "Chetwode."

—Mrs. S. LeRoy arrived from Tuxedo last night, her cottage having been opened in anticipation of her arrival.

—Mr. Frederick H. Paine, who has been abroad several weeks, visiting principally in Paris, returns home today.

—Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Brooks, who spent the winter abroad with Mr. and Mrs. Waldorf Astor, returned to New York today on the Mauretania.

—Mr. James T. O'Connell has purchased from John Reardon his fishing boat, which has been taken for fishing by one of the Greek fishermen.

—Mr. and Mrs. Prescott Lawrence and Miss Katherine Lawrence are still at the Hotel Belmont, New York, where they have been spending the winter.

—The second of the gymnastic exhibitions by the pupils of the Rogers High School will take place this evening, the weather indications giving no cause for a postponement.

—Barge Bandit of the McWilliams Company is discharging a cargo of coal for the Perry Coal Company, and barge Martin of the Keeler line is in with coal for the A. Almy Coal Company.

—The fish receipts today were light, and were confined to boats which arrived last night. Captain Will Luth had 1,300 pounds, Captain Monson 1,100, John Hart 500 and Captain William Smith 600 pounds, cod and haddock mixed.

—Captain Beeching of the Salvation Army spoke at the cottage meeting of the Walter Lowrie Club Thursday evening. Rev. Richard Arnold Greene, honorary president of the club, is expected to return to Newport before Sunday.

—The discussion of "Moving Pictures" at the social centre, Coddington School, will take place Saturday, and not this evening, as reported. The discussion will be led by Mr. Walter Storey, general secretary of the national board of censorship of motion pictures.

—Navy tug Gaeeola, which towed the Maine to her burial place last week, is commanded by Chief Boatswain Peter Emery, who, having married a native Newporter, has for years claimed Newport for his residence. He is one of the members of Camp Thomas, U. S. W. V.

—Mr. Sam Hilton is having a 12-horse-power Lathrop engine installed in his catboat, Three Sisters. Sam says his crew had become so inactive that a motor was necessary, or a change of crews, and he decided on the motor. J. T. O'Connell supplied the motor and Reardon is installing it. He is also putting a 16-horse-power motor in the old catboat Annie.

—"Whitehall," Mr. J. J. Coogan's residence, which was seriously damaged by fire a year ago last month, is still boarded up. Last fall many of the furnishings were removed, some being sent to repair shops and others to storage, but a repair gang has yet to start on the building. It was reported shortly after the fire that repairs were to be made immediately.

—Insane cases have given the police the most work the past 24 hours, two—woman and one man—having been taken in. The woman was adjudged to be in need of expert care and was committed to the insane asylum for treatment. The man was this morning considered to be in doubt, his condition being somewhat better, and he was placed under inspection. One plain drunk was fined $2 and costs, and had it not.

—The amount of water which runs through the centre of Broadway for half a mile in from the One Mile Corner seems to increase in volume each year, and because of the severe washing which the roadway is given by each storm it looks as if some sort of binder would have to be applied to save the continuous expense of up-keep. The Providence line has filled in once between its rails this year, but it is just as bad off now as the other line and the city.

DEALING WITH THE CRIMINAL

Dr. Travis Gives Causes and Some Means of Correcting.

Illustrates Statements from Actual Conditions in Various Parts of the World.

"The Criminal" was the subject of an intensely earnest and interesting address given by Dr. Thomas Travis of Montclair, N. J., before the Young Men's Club of the United Congregational Church at the Parish House on Pelham street Thursday evening. Dr. Travis spoke before the club last winter, and in his second address reviewed in brief the former lecture, speaking more at length on the causes and possible means of correcting the criminal.

Dr. Travis was introduced by Rev. G. A. Hulbert and without any preliminaries entered into his theme. In the review of his former lecture he spoke of the various kinds or classifications of criminals. There are two general classes of criminals, he said—the moral criminals, the leaders of revolutions, men and women who are in dead earnest and who, if they succeed, are patriots and who, if they do not succeed, are traitors; and the non-moral criminals.

The latter class, for scientific purposes, may be divided into seven classifications. Of these there are the criminal by accident, who having once erred finds it easy to continue in his evil way, and become the criminal by acquired habit; the criminal of unrestricted passion, of which class the Allens of Virginia are notable examples, men well educated, with money and generally of right living, who in a moment of passion, become criminals; the criminal by toxics, including the drunkard and cocaine or drug fiend; the insane or neurotic criminal, who is in "a little bit off;" the professional criminal, who goes into crime as a business and is the hardest problem to solve, and last the so-called born or instinctive criminal, the child who is so born mentally and physically that he will inevitably become a criminal.

The great problem is how to deal with these criminals. Temperance people claim that drink is the cause of 90 per cent of crime; the White Cross Society, that 90 per cent is due to immorality; the alienists, that degeneracy is the prevailing cause; the socialists claim that 90 per cent of the crime of the world would not exist under the conditions which socialism favors, and the religious men advocate that the love of God and right living in the path of the Christ alone will prevent crime.

Dr. Travis spoke at length on each of these views, claiming that none had all remedies necessary. He illustrated his statements from actual conditions as he had found them in various parts of the world, and his recital in many instances, although the details were unpleasant, gave his hearers a new light on the crime in the world and the necessity of doing something to check its growth. Religion, he claimed, is the strongest single factor, but not all. Degenerates are being born everywhere, and something must be done to prevent this. Drunkenness is undoubtedly a large factor in the creation of crime and moral depravity brings about many crimes, and the love of God and the true realization must be largely a factor in making any change, both in the individual and in society in general.

At the close of his address Dr. Travis answered a number of questions, strengthening by his replies several of the points he made in his formal talk. Afterwards he met the members of the Young Men's Club individually and spoke briefly of several points raised by them. During his stay in Newport Dr. Travis was guest of Rev. Mr. Hulbert.

Dr. Travis made the following significant statement to General Secretary Chapin this morning: "It costs to arrest, try and support a man in a penal institution for one year $1,600, and if the Young Men's Christian Association should save from going wrong but three boys in a year it would be a saving to the community sufficient to offset the amount required from the community to meet its annual budget."

FUNERAL OF DR. ROGERS.

The funeral of Dr. Floyd W. Rogers took place at noon today from the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. T. J. Mulcahy, on Bull street. A simple service, consisting of prayers and Scriptural readings, was conducted by Rev. Gustavus A. Hulbert of the United Congregational Church. Among the large numbers in attendance were representatives of the Newport Medical Society, of which the deceased was a member during his residence in Newport. There were many floral tributes, including pieces from the medical staff of the Newport Hospital, and from Washington Lodge of Masons and Narragansett Council, Royal Arcanum, of which Dr. Rogers was a member.

The body was taken to Wickford on the 1 o'clock trip of steamer General and was interred in Elm Grove Cemetery at Allenton. It was met at the railroad station by Washington Lodge of Masons, which escorted it to the cemetery, performing the Masonic burial service at the grave.

THE OLD FAVORITES.

Disappearance Noted of Many Dear Relics Considered Necessary in the Near Past.

[Brooklyn Eagle.]

Well, what's become of the mustache cup, for instance? Those china affairs made especially so gentlemen would not soil their lip adornments on the coffee, it seems only yesterday that Aunt Lizzie was sending them to all her best beaux for birthday presents. It was because I missed them the other day that I tried to find out how many other dear relics of the near past have disappeared.

What's become of the mud scrapers on the doorsteps and the mats with the large "Welcome" on them that used to greet us all wherever we opened the door? What's become of all the red and white barred stockings all the little girls used to wear? I can remember hundreds of little girls who used to run around with their legs looking like sticks of peppermint candy, but now I never see one. And the knitted mufflers around the necks? And oh, yes—what's become of the big mitts we used to wear with strings attached around our necks?

I recall now that I did n't see a linen duster last summer, and I didn't see one of those straw derby hats we used to wear. What's become of them? And where are the red-top boys' boots, the boots with the little brass protectors, the boys' shoes with the big horseshoe nail on the bottom of the heel?

What's become of the lady barbers? And what's become of all the sealskin caps and the bluing balls mother used to use in washing? What's become of the hand-painted neckties, the whatnots that used to adorn the parlor corner, the fringe on the parlor furniture, the old plush piano stool with the fringe on it, and the iron animals in the front garden?

Then there are the plush picture frames, the worsted mats for the lamp, made with a spool and four pins; strange glass canes that hung up in the parlor with colored water inside. What's become of them? What, too, of the big glass marbles with the little silver lamb inside that was the last word in knickknacks in every well-conducted American home? Also the stuffed doves under the round glass case that used to stand just at the side of the door, and the everlasting flowers. And what's become of the knitted wristlets you used to see along Broadway or any main street, and what's become of the old handknitted stockings for men, the sealskin collars on the coats—the sealskin collars that never had a lining—and last, the case on the mantelpiece with the wax figures?

Don't you remember the butter dish in the shape of the hen sitting on eggs and the milk pitcher built in the shape of a cow? You never see them now. And how about those elegant tidies the girls used to move around so they would not be back of our heads when we sat on the chairs and sofas?

Of course the storage battery did away with the pull door knobs, but what made the horsehair ring, the horsehair chin, the cigr-store wooden Indian, the whalebone corset and the mottoes of "God Bless Our Home" sewed with colored worsted through perforated cardboard disappear? And what's become of the spring-heeled shoes for your ladies?

NEW ENGLAND TOBACCO.

[Connecticut Farmer.]

Other parts of the United States produce much more tobacco than New England, but in quality of leaf, prices received and possibly profits of the business New England leads them all.

The advance census report shows that New England has 21,666 acres in tobacco, averaging 1,740 pounds of cured leaf an acre, which is valued at 15 cents a pound on the farm. No tobacco-growing state outside New England, of which we have returns from the present census, approaches these figures. Here are the statistics:

	Pounds an acre	Value in cents a pound at the farm.
New England	1,740	15.0
New York	1,300	7.6
Illinois	785	7.7
Wisconsin	1,160	8.8
Pennsylvania	1,100	8.6
West Virginia	600	16.4
Missouri	950	12.6

The figures given are the average of all the tobacco grown in New England, good and bad. The range of values is, however, very wide. Poorly handled crops in a bad year may sell as low as 5 cents, while the best crops of broadleaf in some years will bring 25 or 35 cents a pound at the farm.

For the shade-grown leaf much higher prices obtain. The growers usually handle and ferment their own crops, which in finished condition will bring from 75 cents to $1.50 or more a pound for the whole crop. In general it costs the farmer from 40 to 50 cents a pound to grow the tobacco, and he can get from 70 to 90 cents for it before it is fermented or sorted.

New England probably has as much more land suitable for growing tobacco as is now devoted to it. There is room for many growers of six or eight acres of leaf in the open. There is also room for capitalists or corporations who can handle 300 to 600 acres of tobacco grown under shade. Both kinds of investment will pay if properly made and managed.

WANT SENATORIAL COURTESY.

Young Men Lack Wisdom in Holding Up Public Building Bills.

Regrets for Congressman Lawrence—Anti-Reciprocity Sentiment Shown in North Dakota.

[Washington correspondence of The News.]

WASHINGTON, March 28.—The Senate is the great unanimous consent body. About the only way any measure can now be brought to a vote is by invoking the unanimous consent method. At times there are two or three unanimous consent arrangements running along at the same time. Then they have to get another unanimous consent to end the one upon which they may be working. That is because they do not fix an hour for voting but agree to vote upon a certain "legislative day." By a curious legislative fiction they make a "legislative day" run for several days.

This unanimous consent method of legislating is made necessary by reason of there being no way of limiting debate in the Senate. At present there are 92 Senators. When the new states elect there will be 96. In a body that large with unlimited debate it will be very hard to legislate unless a modified cloture is adopted. Meanwhile the Senate will run along with its unanimous consents.

Those young Senators, Lea of Tennessee and Kenyon of Iowa, have shown an utter lack of Senatorial courtesy. They have held up another Senator's public building bills. It is very strange. Never in the history of the Senate, so far back as any of the ancient employes can remember, has anything of the kind happened. Every Senator has always been accorded the right to introduce and have passed as many public building bills as he wanted. No matter if he did provide buildings at towns of only a few hundred inhabitants, it was not Senatorial courtesy to raise an objection. These young men have certainly embarked on a perilous venture.

Vice President Sherman is not only "Sunny Jim," but he is also "Foxy Jim." In the fight against pensions Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia brought up a delicate and complicated question, one of those dangerous propositions which might make trouble in the future. Smith demanded a separate vote on each of the more than 200 pension cases in a pending bill. Senator McCumber said he wanted a ruling on the demand. Sherman said there was no precedent governing the case and he would submit it to the Senate.

Several Democratic Senators had jumped in to second Smith's demand but when it came to making a precedent by a vote of the Senate they hung back and side-stepped, finally agreeing to allow such an important matter to go undecided. Sherman did not need to take the responsibility of making a new rule, but the Senate would have made one if the question had been voted one way or another.

When the river and harbor bill passed the House several members took occasion to express their regrets that Congressman Lawrence was going to retire from the House. Lawrence has served long on the rivers and harbors committee and is very popular in the House. And, by the way, the men who constructed the river and harbor bill were the best of architects. There was not a word of complaint about it. Everything went sliding along as if on ice. Every district had been properly oiled for putting the bill through without opposition.

Just how deeply the people along the Northern border felt about the reciprocity bill was shown in North Dakota primary. Up in that state the people had seen 10 and 15 cents a bushel difference in the price of grain in Canada and this country. They were dead against reciprocity, La Follette opposed reciprocity.

Nox McCain the lecturer on picturesque America, said when showing a picture of Medora, N. D., that it was made famous by Theodore Roosevelt. But not so. Medora was named for the wife of the Marquis de Mores. This nobleman sank about $600,000 there in an effort to sow Armour and Cudahy that they didn't know anything about the packing business.

De Mores one time protested against the action of a bunch of cowboys in preventing a sheriff from serving a warrant. They at once turned upon him, but he escaped and rode to his ranch. The cowboys mounted and followed, but De Mores took several repeating rifles, found good cover along the road near his place and as the men came up opened fire and kept it up until he had wounded several and drove the others back. From that time forward he was in high feather with everybody in that region.

Roosevelt was but an incident in Medora compared to the marquis.

THE COLONEL ON THE DEFENSIVE.

[Hartford Times.]

The colonel in his peech at Carnegie hall devoted much of his time and his effort to explaining that his ideas on the recall of judical decisions were not as bad as they sounded at Columbus. To us this seems much more interesting and significant than his denunciation of Mr. Taft as an oligarch or the renewal of his protestations of faith in the people. It is earnestly explanatory and almost equally apologetic. The colonel seems to be engaged in a crawl.

He avoids even the word "recall." He prefers to call it "review." And he goes on at great length to explain that he doesn't want judges recalled "in all states"; that he doesn't want the Supreme Court changed at all; that he wouldn't for worlds advocate anything affecting "ordinary suits, civil or criminal, as between individuals," and that the integrity of judges is a "fine page of American history," anyway. All he asks is that when a special interest has found corrupt a sanctuary in the courts the democracy should have the right to "approach that sanctuary." The lion of Columbus roars as mildly as a dove.

The colonel is on the defensive and defense is new to him. He has found that the adulation lavished upon him, a rampant President of the United States, does not extend to an equally rampant seeker for the Presidency. Strangely enough his word is not gospel. The Columbus speech lacked the political perspicacity, the caution, the agility which once characterized his utterances. The colonel went too far and he knows it. Instead of glorifying his strength he seeks to palliate his recklessness. The colonel is losing his confidence in himself.

Some Delicious Frozen Desserts—Sultana Roll, Coffee Mousse and Angel Pudding.

[Cornelia C. Bedford.]

Menu
Fruit Cocktail
Soubise Soup Fish Souffle
Sweetbreads and Mushrooms
Sauce Bechamel
Broiled Chicken
Asparagus on Toast
Egg Salad Cheese Biscuit
Ice Cream Eggs Fancy Cakes
Coffee

The usual soubise soup is made quite strong with onions, but for this dinner a more delicate flavor would be advisable. For the 12 covers, for which the dinner is designed, peel and thinly slice sufficient white onions to measure one pint. Pour over them boiling water to cover, let stand for five minutes, then drain. Now drop in two tablespoonfuls of butter, cover and cook at the side of the fire for 10 minutes without browning, shaking occasionally. Add one quart of water, a half teaspoonful of salt, one quarter of a teaspoonful of white pepper, a pinch of mace and a half teaspoonful of sugar. Cook slowly for an hour, then rub through a puree sieve. In the meantime scald one quart of milk in a double boiler. Thicken it with one tablespoonful and a half of butter and three tablespoonfuls of flour rubbed together to a soft paste. Blend this with the onion puree and return to the fire over hot water. Taste to see that it is well seasoned and keep hot. Five minutes before serving draw it one side; a moment before taking off, add the beaten yolks of two eggs mixed with two tablespoonfuls of cream and serve immediately.

For the entree soak three pairs of sweetbreads in cold water, changing until they are white; then drop into boiling water, add a half onion, a teaspoonful of salt and simmer gently for half an hour; drain, chill in cold water and cut in small dice with a silver knife. Peel and cut up a half pound of fresh mushrooms, put them in a saucepan with a quarter of a pound of butter, cover and cook slowly for 20 minutes. When fresh mushrooms are not to be had substitute the contents of two cans, cooking only five minutes in the butter. Skim them out of their liquor; pour the latter into a measure and add enough of the broth from the sweetbreads to make a cupful and a half. Blend two large tablespoonfuls of flour with a little cold water to a paste, add to the mixture and stir over the fire until boiling and thick; gradually add one cupful of thin cream and simmer for three minutes. Season to taste, add the sweetbreads and mushrooms, season again and let stand over boiling water, closely covered, until needed. A moment before serving add the yolks of three eggs beaten with two tablespoonfuls of cream and serve in ramekin dishes.

For the cheese biscuit mix and sift one cupful and a half of flour, a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt and a teaspoonful of baking powder. Rub in two large tablespoonfuls of butter, add one scant cupful of grated cheese, a dash of cayenne and sufficient ice water to make a soft dough. Roll out a half-inch thick, cut in egg shapes. Wet the top of each with water, sprinkle with grated cheese, arrange well apart on flat pans and bake in a moderate oven. Use cold or hot.

The ice cream may be made very early in the day, packed in small egg-shaped molds and buried in ice and salt until time to serve. Then lay on spun sugar nests and decorate with candied mint leaves and pieces of pineapple.

Have the coffee clear and rather strong.

Philadelphia Ice Cream—Take one quart of cream. Put half of it in a double boiler and heat to the scalding point. Add one cupful of granulated sugar, stir until it is melted and take from the fire; add quickly the remainder of the cream, strain and set aside until cool. Flavor with any extract or fruit flavor desired, remembering that it should taste rather strongly, as a part of both sweetening and flavoring disappears after freezing. Pour into the freezer and freeze.

New York Ice Cream—Scald one pint of milk in a double boiler. Add one tablespoonful of flour rubbed to a smooth paste with a little cold milk, stir for a moment, then cover and keep at the boiling point for half an hour. Beat together three eggs and one heaping cupful of sugar. Add this to the cooked milk, stid until thickened to a custard, take off, strain and cool. When ready to freeze add one pint of rich cream and any desired flavoring. Instead of extract the cream may be put in the freezer and, when just beginning to thicken, one cupful of any kind of fruit pulp may be stirred in.

Sultana Roll—Make either a Philadelphia or New York ice cream, coloring it a pale green and flavoring with pistachio. Put one cupful of seedless raisins in a bowl, cover with sherry and let stand for two hours, then drain (this is to prevent their freezing like lumps of ice). Whip one cupful and a half of heavy sweet cream to a solid froth; mix in lightly a half cupful of sifted powdered sugar, one teaspoonful of vanilla and the raisins. Chill a mold in ice and salt. Line sides and bottom an inch thick with the ice cream, then fill the centre with the whipped cream mixture. Over the top spread a layer of the ice cream. Cover with paper, then fit on the cover and bury in ice and salt. When ready to serve take out the mold, rinse off with cold water to remove the salt; wipe, open and invert the mold on the serving dish. If the room is warm let stand for a moment and the mold can be lifted off without trouble or the risk of molting some of the cream.

Coffee Mousse—To a pint of heavy cream add a scant half cupful of strong, clear black coffee and three quarters of a cupful of powdered sugar, stirring until the latter is dissolved. Soak one teaspoonful of granulated gelatine in two tablespoonfuls of cold water, stand over hot water until dissolved, then add to the prepared cream. As soon as the mixture shows signs of thickening, begin to beat and continue until the whole mixture is a solid froth. Turn into a mold, cover, bind the edges with the prepared cloth and freeze.

Angel Pudding—Boil together one cupful of sugar and one half cupful of water until the syrup will spin a short thread when dropped from the tines of a fork. Have ready the stiffly whipped whites of two eggs. Pour the hot syrup in a fine stream over the whipped whites, beating steadily. Stand in a pan of cool water and continue to beat until cold, then add two or one teaspoonful of vanilla, half cupful sherry and one cupful and a half of heavy cream whipped to a solid froth and the raisins. Chill a mold, line of sherry and one cupful and a half fitting cover, bind the edges with the greased cloth and bury in ice and salt for fully four hours. When turned on the serving dish sprinkle with finely chopped candied fruits.

AMERICAN PERRY.

A Song Composed to Celebrate Victory Over the British at the Battle of Lake Erie.

[A. M. in Notes and Queries, Boston Transcript.]

If, as L. F. H. asserts, "pearrie is a name given by some foreigners to cider," then the foreigners are mistaken, for perry (as it is now properly spelled), though resembling cider, is a beverage made from the juice of pears expressed and fermented. The beverage has been drunk in England for some 600 years, and a century ago was well known in this country. I have no doubt that the song asked for is the one given below taken from William McCarty's "National Song Book," 1842. II. 73-76. The songs written during a war make for the most dreary reading in the extreme, but "American Perry" is better than many such songs. It was composed to celebrate the victory of Oliver Hazard Perry over the British under Barclay at the battle of Lake Erie September 10, 1813. The word "pear'd" in the first line of the ninth stanza shows that the writer of the song knew perfectly well what "perry" was.

AMERICAN PERRY—1813.
Tune—"Abraham Newland."

Bold Barclay, one day, to Proctor did say
"I'm tired of Jamaica and Sherry;
So let us go down to that new floating town,
And get some American Perry—
O cheap American Perry!
Most pleasant American Perry!
We need only all bear down, knock, and call,
And we'll have the American Perry.

The landlady's kind, weak, simple and blind;
We'll soon be triumphantly merry!
We've cash in the locker, and custom shall shock her,
And we'll soon get a taste of her Perry—
O, American Perry!
The sparkling American Perry!
No trouble we'll find, your order to mind,
So away for American Perry."

All ready for play, they got under way,
With heart and hand right voluntary;
And when they came there, they quickly did stare,
At the taste of American Perry:
O the American Perry!
Sparkling American Perry.
How great the deception, when such a reception
They meet from American Perry.

They thought such a change was undoubtedly strange,
And rued their unlucky vagary;
Your liquor's too hot, keep it still in the pot,
O cork your American Perry—
O this American Perry—
Fiery American Perry:
In my noddle 'twill work; it's a dose for a Turk—
O! O! this American Perry.

Full surely they knew the scrape would not do;
'Twould ruin his majesty's ferry;
So they tried to turn tail, with a rag of a sail,
And quit this American Perry—
O the American Perry!
Flushing American Perry.
But the crossing the lake was all a mistake—
They had swallowed so much of the Perry.

Then Barclay exclaimed, "I cannot be blamed—
For well I've defended each wherry:
My men are so drunk, and some so defunct—
If I strike to American Perry.
O this American Perry!
Thundering American Perry.
Such hot distillation would fuddle our nation
Should it taste the American Perry."

The stuff did so bruise his staggering crews,
That some with their feet were unwary;
While some had their brains knock'd out for their pains,
By this shocking American Perry.
O American Perry!
Outrageous American Perry!
Old, tough British tars, all covered with scars,
Capsized by American Perry.

The Indians on shore made a horrible roar,
And left every ground-nut and berry;
Then scamper'd away, for no relish had they
For a dose of American Perry—
O American Perry!
Confounding American Perry,
While General Proctor looked on like a doctor,
At the deadly American Perry.

The Briton was sick, being pear'd to the quick,
And his vessels were quite fragmentary;
So, scolding his luck, he prudently struck
To a stream of American Perry—
O American Perry!
Persevering American Perry!
A whole British fleet, ship to ship, has been beat,
By an American commodore—
"Perry!"

On American ground, where such spirit is found,
Let us toast the brave "Heroes of Erie;"
But never forget those whose life-sun did set,
By the side of their Commodore Perry—
O brave American Perry!
Triumphant American Perry!
Let us remember the "Tenth of September,"
When a fleet struck to Commodore Perry.

VASTNESS OF PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD SYSTEM.

The vastness of the Pennsylvania Railroad system and the number of people dependent upon it are indicated in a report just issued. This shows that on December 31, 1911, the system had 26,336.5 miles of track the largest mileage in the history of the company. It also was made public that the number of stockholders of the Pennsylvania railroad March 1 was 73,567 an increase of 1,744 over last year. This number does not include the stockholders of the various subsidiaries, nor does it embrace bondholders of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and its affiliated lines.

The Pennsylvania Railroad system has 11,503.76 miles of line, of which 6,829.54 miles are east of Pittsburg, and the remainder 5,174.22, west of Pittsburgh. These lines run through 13 states and the District of Columbia, a section in which more than one half of the people of the United States live.

The system has 11,503.76 miles of first track, 3,593.04 miles of second track, 793.41 miles of third track and 619.03 miles of fourth track. It also has 8,722.27 miles of sidings. The increase in the trackage during 1911 was 619.93 miles.

The state of Pennsylvania has 4,134.07 of the 11,503.76 miles of line. Ohio is second in mileage, having a total of 1,932.58 miles. In Indiana there are 1,659.93 miles of line, while the remainder is divided as follows:

Delaware, 276.34 miles; District of Columbia 12.02; Illinois, 642.43; Kentucky, 4.07; Maryland, 601.90; Michigan, 439.99; Missouri, 30.78; New Jersey, 780.17½; New York 822.67; Virginia, 77.87 and West Virginia, 89.07 miles.

PERSONALS.

....J. Pierpont Morgan has signified an intention of visiting Venice April 23 for the opening of the biennial International Art Exhibition April 25, and for the inauguration of the new Campanile of St. Mark's.

....One day this week William G. Smith left the hamlet of Vergennes, Vt., where he was born, for the first time in 63 years. He took his first trip on a railroad train, going to Nemburgh, N. Y. to visit his daughter. He had his first view of trolley cars and steamboats.

....In connection with the recent distribution by Henry Phipps, Sr., a deed was filed Thursday in the Washington county, Pa., courts by which Mr. Phipps for a nominal consideration of $1 conveys 414 acres of land in the eastern end of Washington county to his sons, John S., Henry C. and Howard Phipps. The properties lie along the Monongahela river and are underlaid with the Pittsburgh vein of coal.

....With Mayor Gaynor of New York as one of his godfathers, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. William Seward Webb, Jr., received the name of William Seward Webb, 3d, with a simple christening ceremony performed by Bishop David H. Greer in the St. Savior Chapel of the Episcopal Cathedral of St. John the Divine Thursday afternoon. The other godparents were Frank Egerton Webb, uncle of the child, and Mrs. Ralph Pulitzer, an aunt on the paternal side of the family.

....Lieutenant Colonel Ferdinand E. De Courcy, U. S. A., retired, died in New York Thursday. He was born in Ireland December 24, 1836, and enlisted in the Second United States Infantry December 22, 1857, winning commendation for his services along the Western frontier before the Civil war, when he was made second lieutenant in the Thirteenth United States infantry, of which General Phil Sheridan was at that time captain. He was soon promoted to first lieutenant and was made captain in 1861.

ENDORSED AT HOME.

Such Proof as This Should Convince Any Newport Citizen.

The public endorsement of a local citizen is the best proof that can be produced. None better—none stronger can be had. When a man comes forward and testifies to his fellow-citizens, addresses his friends and neighbors, you may be sure he is thoroughly convinced or he would not do so. Telling one's experience when it is for the public good is an act of kindness that should be appreciated. The following statement given by a resident of Newport adds one more to the many cases of Home Endorsement which are being published about Doan's Kidney Pills. Read it.

Arthur J. Oakley, 20 Gould St., Newport, R. I., says: "I have not been bothered by kidney trouble since I used Doan's Kidney Pills some years ago, and for that reason, I willingly confirm the public statement I gave in their praise at that time. My kidneys were badly disordered and the kidney secretions were too frequent in passage. My back also ached and in the morning I could hardly arise. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Wright & Hay's Drug Store, gave me relief at once and the contents of two boxes completely cured me."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

KING'S PUREMALT.

Physicians recommend this palatable tonic as a builder of red corpuscles in the blood. It calms irritation of the nervous system, induces sound and refreshing sleep, brightens the eyes, quickens the step and lightens the daily round of duties.

Collier's Weekly in its issue of September 2, 1911, published an article entitled "Here Are Foods That Are Pure," by Margaret Wagner. There was printed in this article "A List From Which Housewives May Choose Without Doubt or Hesitancy." This list was the result of several years' analytical work by the pupils of the State Normal school at Westfield, Massachusetts, under the direction of Professor Lewis B. Allyn. KING'S PUREMALT is mentioned among the food products of absolute pure quality. The indorsement of this preparation and the publication of the article by Collier's Weekly was unsolicited by the manufacturers.

KING'S PUREMALT with the addition of hypophosphites of iron and lime is a medicinal tonic recognized for many years as a most dependable, strength-giving, body-building liquid food. Only the choicest materials are used in its manufacture. It is without drug stores and in strict conformity with the Pure Food and Drug Act of June 30, 1906. Send for prices to your druggist or to us.

ROYAL ASSENT GIVEN TO BILL.

Voting in all Districts on Question of Returning.

Brynkinalle Miners at Chirk, Wales, in Favor of Resuming Work.

LONDON, March 29.—Balloting began today in all the districts of the United Kingdom on the question whether 1,000,000 miners now on strike shall return to work pending the decision of the district boards to be appointed under the government's minimum wage act, in order to settle on the rates of wages in the various centres.

In some cases the results of the balloting will be known this week. As a matter of fact the colliers connected with the Brynkinalle mine at Chirk, Wales, already have voted on the question and the proportion of five to two of the men is in favor of resuming. These men are an exception to the general rule, as throughout the strike they have strongly supported the owner of the pit, Donald C. Craig, veteran, 82 years of age, who faced the angry men from the surrounding districts when they threatened to close his mine and has insisted that his property should be kept going no matter what happened. He has kept his word, but not until this morning was his full staff of men working, and then then they were under military protection.

The full returns of the balloting will not officially be announced until April 4 and it will probably be after Easter before all the miners again return to work. From now on, however, it is expected that greater numbers will resume each day.

The total cost of the strike to the miners' unions so far has been $5,210,250, and the balance left in the unions' treasuries now amounts to only $4,750,000, most of which is invested in securities which will not bring in their full value under forced sale. Organizations connected with other trades have distributed nearly $2,500,000 in out-of-work benefits to their members.

The railways gave notice today that they will accept only food and fuel supplies as freight, and this will enable them to cut down their services to the minimum.

The royal assent was given to the minimum wage bill at noon today.

SURPRISE FOR MRS. STOHLBERG

Thursday afternoon the ladies of the Sewing Society of the Swedish Lutheran Church gave a genuine surprise party to Mrs. Carl Stohlberg at her home on Brewer street, Mrs. Stohlberg having been the society's president for several years. They presented her with a handsome silver coffee pot and set of silver spoons as a token of appreciation of her interest in and work for the society. On the gift were engraved these words, "To Mrs. Carl Stohlberg, Presented by the Ladies' Sewing Society of the Swedish Lutheran Church." As soon as Mrs. Stohlberg recovered from her surprise she expressed her thanks as well as she could for the gifts and the spirit in which they were given. A pleasant time was spent the remainder of the afternoon, the ladies coming well provided with refreshments.

STRIKERS APPLY FOR PAY DUE THEM.

No Measures Taken on Any Side to Provide Relief.

Settlement of Trouble in Lowell Still Appears to be Remote.

LOWELL, Mass., March 29.—Umbrellared, rain-soaked crowds of striking and locked out operatives besieged in a heavy drizzle today the gates and pay windows of several of the half a dozen closed cotton mills to secure the wages due them, or the checks upon presentation of which the money will be paid to them tomorrow. Today, and tomorrow are the last pay days in the closed cotton mills until the existing lock out shall have been ended, or the strike, which caused it, declared off.

This conclusion, much desired on all sides but which each side declares cannot be reached without concessions by the other, was as remote today as since the declaration of the strike. The money which these operatives receive, therefore, will be in many cases all that remains between them and starvation for themselves and their families, except for relief through the unions or charity. No measures have yet been taken on any side to provide relief although all indications are that the struggle will be a long one, with the attendant lack of means for the unemployed to secure food or the money to pay rent. The mills will pay their operatives all that is coming to the operatives.

It is the custom to withhold one week's pay but the agents, expressing sympathy with the lock out workers, it is said, had no wish to hold anything to keep them in Lowell when it might be possible for them to obtain work elsewhere. Many have already left the city to do this, without waiting to secure their money in the mills and with this payment today it is expected that the exodus will be considerably greater.

President John Golden of the United Textile Workers of America arrived here today to take charge for his organization here. He made a statement saying, "The representatives of the United Textile Workers of America and the American Federation of Labor will establish themselves in Lowell to secure terms of settlement that will be satisfactory to those textile workers who are willing to be advised by reliable labor union officials."

Mr. Golden said that under instructions from the executive board of the United Textile Workers he is "to camp here until these matters are settled, if it takes all summer." He added that the entire resources of the United Textile Workers will be placed at his disposal, if necessary.

Mr. Golden entered upon the work he has laid out for himself immediately upon his arrival, adressing a convention of loom fixers.

A committee of employes of the Massachusetts mills waited upon Agent Mitchell with a list of demands, but when Mr. Mitchell found the men represented the Industrial Workers of the World he declined to confer with them. While the committee members were employes in the Massachusetts mills before the strike, they told Mr. Mitchell that they represented the Industrial Workers.

The Bigelow carpet mill management has received the demand of its union weavers for an advance of 15 per cent.

OVERCOMING TAX PROBLEMS.

The tax assessors and Tax Collector Higbee paid a visit to the state tax board early this week and had a very pleasant time talking over the problems which are to be met and overcome in connection with the proper enforcement of the new tax laws. The visit was at the invitation of the state board, and a great deal of information about the workings of the new law was given. Mr. Bliss doing most of the talking for the board. Incidents illustrating the method of working and showing what has been done and could be done to get property which ought to be taxed, helped to throw light on the plans for a more complete assessment of taxes than has heretofore been possible. The local board was told of one man, not in Newport, who had been taxed for years for $150,000. It has been found that he possessed $13,000,000 of property which was liable to assessment.

DEATH OF MRS. MARGARET DAVITT OF FALL RIVER.

A very well known young resident of Fall River, Mrs. Margaret M. Teresa Davitt, died Wednesday night at her home, 262 New Boston road, after a somewhat lengthy illness. Before her marriage she was Miss Margaret O'Brien, daughter of Catherine and the late James O'Brien. She was born in Portsmouth where her parents had a very wide acquaintance, and removed to Fall River a number of years ago. Mrs. Davitt was for some time employed as a clerk for T. L. Doyle, and later was given a responsible position with J. C. Brady, druggist. In recognition of her ability in this line of work, she was promoted to a more lucrative position with the E. S. Anthony Wholesale Drug Company, and remained in the employ of that corporation for some years. She was married to John A. Davitt a little over a year ago.

FISHED ON PRIVATE BEDS.

District Court's Decision in Case Against William Wyatt Reserved Until Next Tuesday.

This morning in the district court was devoted to trying the case brought by the fisheries commission against William Wyatt of Portsmouth, charged with dredging in the leased oyster beds of Benjamin B. Martin in the Seaconnet river. These beds are controlled by the Henry C. Rowe Oyster Company, which leases a dozen or more beds in this state.

The witnesses for the prosecution included Captain Norgood and Captain Davenport, keepers at the Seaconnet beds; Henry Rose, a member of the firm; O. Perry Soll, a civil engineer; Brayton A. Rounds, clerk of the commission of shell fisheries, and Benjamin B. Martin, owner of the beds alleged to have been trespassed upon. The prosecution succeeded without difficulty in proving that the defendant was fishing on private beds, overruling counsel's motion for the dismissal of the case, made on the ground that there was nothing to show that Wyatt did not have permission to fish there. The court, however, thought there was a question of the sufficiency of the warrant. The complaint alleges that the beds are the property of Benjamin B. Martin, while the evidence was that they are a part of the assets of the Rowe company. The court thought the proper wording of the warrant, in view of the testimony, should have been: "Benjamin B. Martin and others." He reserved his decision until next Tuesday.

The prosecution was represented by Assistant Attorney General Phillips and the defendant by Mr. Frank Nolan. It was an interesting case, from the outsider's point of view, owing to the continual "sparring" between the two lawyers. Both were on their feet almost continually, arguing their objections, and sometimes the court found it necessary to intercede firmly.

The Manuel Silvia murder case was continued until Friday for assignment, at which time defendant will be represented by counsel.

MRS. THOMAS A. LAWTON'S WORK IN ST. AUGUSTINE.

The St. Augustine Evening Record gives a brief account of the work done for the St. Augustine Public Library this winter by Mrs. Thomas A. Lawton of this city, as follows:

"Mrs. Wilson, the founder of the library and whose generosity made it possible, being now beyond 90 years of age, resigned the direction of the library this winter and Mrs. T. A. Lawton was elected to supervise, direct and act as secretary and treasurer. Her efficiency is well known in St. Augustine. The touch of her skilled hand is everywhere visible. Her inspiration has kindled a flame of enthusiasm in many others, and the building, rooms, cases, books, indexes, as if they were living things, have responded to the new life. There are now about 6,000 volumes on the shelves and in the different rooms. On Thursday, for the first time, a children's reading room was opened. Mrs. Lawton received the children, who were given seats at the library table, where magazines and instructive books had been placed. In the centre of the table was a huge bowl filled with delicious home-made candies, to which the children were invited to help themselves."

10.—The feature of the opening of today's stock market was the rise of 2½ points in Canadian Pacific and one point gain in Union Pacific and ⅜ in Southern Pacific. The Hill issues advanced fractionally, as did Reading, Erie, Rock Island Preferred, Baltimore & Ohio, Consolidated Gas and Great Northern Ore certificates. United States Steel, on sales of 3,000 shares, was unchanged. Slight recessions were shown by Amalgamated Copper, American Can, Missouri Pacific and Southern Railway.

11—The early rise in Canadian Pacific and the trans-continentals followed the materially higher level for those issues in London, whose markets manifested much optimism over the signing of the minimum wage bill by King George. This was accepted as a decided step forward. Considerable selling met the advance here and prices receded generally, with more or less pressure against United States Steel, American Smelting and Amalgamated Copper. Later on the list grew steadier and a few issues eclipsed their opening high price.

Noon—Further indication that interest had switched to the railway shares was offered in the course of the morning by the increased activity made in the strength of Union Pacific and Southern Pacific, both ascending to best prices for the movement, while Canadian Pacific, which increased its rise to four points, was then at its best figure since January. Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie controlled by Canadian Pacific, also rose sharply and Baltimore & Ohio, Northern Pacific and Rock Island preferred were up 1 to 1½ points. Just before noon Reading rose briskly, and Lehigh Valley went 1¾ above yesterday's closing. Bonds were firm. Money on call steady at 2½ per cent. Prime mercantile paper 4 to 4½ per cent. "SOME FACTS ABOUT MILK."

Mr. Greenlaw Talks of Composition, Food Value, Tests, Quality, Requirements and Bacteria.

Taking into consideration several other attractions Thursday evening there was a large attendance at Coles Laboratories to hear Mr. Frank M. Greenlaw, head of the science department of the Rogers High School, lecture on "Some Facts About Milk." The subject should come near to each individual, as milk is practically the only animal food which is eaten raw and as we were all originally dependent upon it. Mr. Greenlaw gave two scientific definitions of milk, and then said that milk contains a little of everything, and mostly water. Here was shown a quart of milk in its composition—nearly a quart of water, fatty acids, butter fats, milk sugar or lactose, casein, albumen, phosphates of lime, phosphates of potash, citrates, calcium phosphate. The composition of milk is given as follows: A quart weighs 32.x ounces and contains water, 27.39 ounces; sugar, 1.59; protein, 1.15; fat, 1.28; ash, 0.22; dissolved dirt, 0.10.

It has been estimated that New York consumes in its milk daily 10 tons of filth—probably an exaggerated estimate, although conservative Berlin reports 300 pounds daily, which is 299 pounds too much. Because of its low fuel value—314 calories per pound—milk is not as valuable a food for adults as meat, although the ease with which milk is assimilated makes it useful. Seven pints of milk daily is enough food for a man of rather sedentary habits. The value of milk depends upon its richness, upon the amount of butter fats it contains, skimmed milk being but one-half as valuable as unskimmed. Cow's milk unmodified is not suitable for infant's food, since it contains too much fat and protein.

Mr. Greenlaw gave several tests of milk for temperature, specific gravity and fats by the Babcock method, fatty solids by evaporation and ash. If milk contains two per cent or less of butter fats it is legally skimmed or adulterated milk. Standard milk must contain 13 per cent of total solids, including fats. Mr. Greenlaw tested milk for formaldehyde, which, together with other poisons, prevents the souring of milk. If dilute enough, formaldehyde does no particular harm to adults, but it is responsible for malnutrition, and sometimes the death, of infants. Mr. Greenlaw tested, also, for dirt, and mentioned the requirements for the quality of milk in different states, the requirements for Idaho, Louisiana and New Hampshire being low and the requirements for Rhode Island high—three and a quarter per cent butter fats and eight and a half per cent solids not fat.

The lacteal bacillus was next discussed; the bulk of this increases as the cube of its dimensions. The various kinds of germs in milk are as follows: Those that are neither helpful or harmful, those which cause the milk to sour and those which produce disease—typhoid fever, diphtheria, tuberculosis, scarlet fever. Bacteria may be kept down in number by the sterilization of milk bottles; the keeping of milk bottles at a certain temperature for a certain number of hours; the keeping of milk cold, since below 55 degrees there is no development of germs, and by Pasteurization—heating milk to a certain temperature and allowing it to remain at a given temperature for a certain length of time. It is generally conceded that only by Pasteurization in the large cities under the same control as routine milk inspections can milk be made a safe food.

At the close of his lecture Mr. Greenlaw showed and explained several slides. On the board were the following interesting facts about milk:

Bacteria per cubic centimeter.

For milk (first few streams), 6,000-8,000.

Second, ½ pint, 1,000-1,500.

After 2 quarts, 500-800.

Strippings, sterile.

Composition of milk from different breeds.

Durham	13.38	4.05	9.33
Ayrshire	12.73	3.54	9.09

Although Mr. Greenlaw's lecture last evening occupied nearly an hour and a half, interest did not flag. Mr. Greenlaw is such a scholarly, practical and magnetic speaker that his annual lectures are looked forward to with much pleasure.

THOSE SWINGING SIGNS.

Swinging signs are still being erected over the streets, despite the seeming intention of the law to eventually do away with them altogether. An effort has been made to secure signatures to a paper declaring in favor of the swinging sign. Some merchants, at least, say they are not in favor of the projecting sign, and that it is a privilege of value only when it is enjoyed by a few, because the general display of such signs causes a confusion and hiding of each other; hence the money so expended is wasted and would better be spent otherwise.

MIDDLETOWN.

Professor Stene Lectures Before Aquidneck Grange on "The Spraying of Fruit Trees."

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

Aquidneck Grange, No. 30, Patrons of Husbandry, held its semi-monthly meeting Thursday evening at the town hall, entertaining at its open lecturer's hour a number of visitors from Portsmouth and Newport. At the conclusion of the business session Mr. William S. Slocum, the lecturer, after brief remarks introduced Professor A. Edward Stene, superintendent of the extension department at Kingston College who had been asked to speak on "The Spraying of Fruit Trees," especially on "When and how many times each year should one spray?" "For what particular or specific purpose should each spraying be done?" and "What material should be used?" Professor Stene, who is well known here, came provided with a set of six large charts which covered the main facts called for and which were suspended at the head of the hall. These charts had been prepared for him at the college and had been used at the recent Farmers' Institute. They included statistics concerning the loss to fruit growers by insects and had been asked to speak on "The Spraying mixtures, a calendar as to just when the five spraying periods in fruit trees should occur, the mechanism of the latest improved spraying pump and the general cost of spraying, which was estimated at 24 cents a tree or $7.20 an acre. These figures were demonstrated on a Nebraska orchard and showed a net gain over trees receiving no attention.

Rhode Island, Mr. Stene considered, had done good work along these lines, as was evidenced by the products of the Newport County Agricultural Fair. One farmer stated that he had been almost compensated for having his orchard visited by the San Jose scale, because through his attempts to combat it he had learned so much about orcharding. Professor Stene recommended that we meet other troubles in the same spirit; that we wrestle with them as did Jacob of old, until they yield as a blessing, for he considers that there are compensations for every trouble. Mr. Stene mentioned the interest aroused by the corn-growing contest of last year, and spoke of the more extensive plans which are being formulated for its continuance and extension this year, not only among boys, but among girls and adults. The growing interest in agricultural pursuits, he hopes, may bring back the farmers who have run away from their farms and may have found in other sections farms not as productive as the ones left.

In going into details regarding the time of spraying fruit trees and the mixtures used, Professor Stene minutely described the insects and diseases which ravage the buds, leaves and fruit at each special period, and in recommending the lime-sulphur preparation over Bordeaux mixture said that the former kills two birds with one stone, by covering the San Jose scale as well as the insects and diseases. Oils are recommended and much used, a kerosene emulsion being very effective. A commercial stock solution may be applied or a home-made stock preparation, whichever one cares to use. Repeated applications are required to cover the various periods of the coddling moth, the curculio beetles, which flourish at all periods, and are almost impossible to kill, and the various species of fungus diseases which appear at different stages of the growth of the fruit and leaves. Professor Stene believed in general precautionary spraying as a first preventative.

The talk was thoroughly interesting, instructive and practical. At its close questions were asked concerning mildew on grapes, black rot on quinces, possibly poisonous mixtures, gall lice on spruce and evergreens, and "peach tree leaf curl." A rising vote of thanks was given Professor Stene, and many availed themselves of the social hour to question him further. Light refreshments were served. Mrs. Phillip Caswell sang several songs in a delightful manner, and Mr. Fred Webber gave two of his inimitable selections, both members being enthusiastically encored.

Among the guests were Oscar Slocum and Percy Sherman of Glen street, large peach growers; I. Lincoln Sherman of the state board of agriculture, V. A. Vanicek of the Vernon avenue nurseries, Mr. McLellan of the Newport Horticultural Society, Mr. Greason of Forest avenue and Herbert Chase of Portsmouth, all having a business interest in these matters and a large experience and knowledge along this line.

Mr. William S. Slocum has issued his Grange year books, which are filled with a goodly list of entertainments for the year, with a large list of committees to ensure their success. The programs contain a portrait of Worthy Master Joseph A. Peckham, many helpful suggestions "for the good of the order" and interesting bits of poetry.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Herbert Ward, who have been spending the winter with their eldest daughter, Mrs. Lionel H. Peabody and family, in Providence, have returned and re-opened their home on Honeyman hill.

Two large flocks of wild geese were seen flying north Thursday. It is estimated that there were several hundred in the larger group.

Mr. Alanson Spooner, who has been ill since December, is improving and is now able to sit up a little.

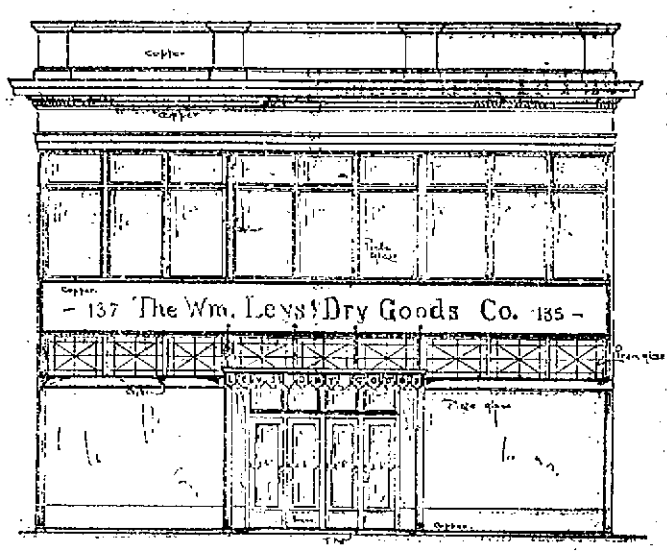

Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Peckham and Mr. and Mrs. W. Clarence Peckham and the latter's son, Harold, arrived Thursday from the South, having spent the past four months at their winter home in Eustis, Fla.

About the only early planting done thus far has been that of onion seeds, which is hardy enough to withstand whatever frost may come.

Dr. and Mrs. C. Edward Farnum and family of Newport are moving this week to the Arnold Villa, Vanderbilt avenue, which they have taken for the summer.

A SIDEWALK SHELTER SUGGESTION.

An agreement between committee and company has been reached on the long discussed matter operation of the street car service in Providence. One of the requirements is for the erection of sidewalk shelters at important points for general waiting. Such a shelter over the sidewalk in front of the City Hall in Newport would not need to give that structure a disagreeable appearance and would be of a great service to the thousands of people who are forced to stand exposed to rain and sun at this point to make transfers. The carrying out of this suggestion would be welcome to the patrons of the Island road.

NEW POLES TO GO UP.

Aldermen Consider, also, the Situation on Touro Street.

Welch Cleared Up and Ready to Make Good; Gordon Claim Referred to the Council.

The Board of Aldermen held the regular weekly meeting Thursday night, Alderman Shepley presiding and all the members present.

The weekly pay rolls were approved for the following sums: Streets and highways, $699.48; police, $880.26; fire department, $505.04; city officers $262.35; firemen in theatres, $36.

Monthly pay rolls were approved as follows: City officers, $2,260.80; police, $166.66; Police Relief Association, $353.61. The quarterly pay roll of the fire department, the first of the year, for $3,483.75, was also approved, making a total of $8,898.45 in salaries to be paid out.

A plumber's license was granted to Lincoln & Tilley.

A petition was received from P. H. Horgan and others asking for an electric light on Kay street at Prairie avenue. It was referred to Alderman Shepley to report.

A petition was received from Thomas F. Keeler and others asking that Waite's wharf be declared a public highway. The city clerk said the cheapest way would be to have the owners give a deed to the city, as the Board has no money for condemnation proceedings should a commission be appointed and award any damages. Alderman Albro said he understood it was impossible to obtain some signatures to a deed; that is why this petition came in. Alderman Hughes suggested that the matter be referred to the alderman from the ward to look into and report, and this was done.

The resolution granting the Newport & Fall river Street Railway Company permission to erect poles came up. It had been laid over for a week to allow of remonstrants. Alderman Albro said he had heard from but one citizen, who lives on Cusewell avenue, and said he wished the pole location granted so he might have electric light. Five poles on Caswell avenue and two on Bliss road were asked for, and one on Corno street to light the Swedish Lutheran Church. There being no opposition to the grants, the resolution was passed.

Tavern licenses, renewals, were granted to Daniel J. Walsh, Richard Bishop, Dwyer & Purcell, Charles H. Sullivan, Daniel J. McGowan, M. Driscoll and Kiernan & Sheehan.

Eating house licenses were granted as follows: Egan & Burke, Tobin & Bradley, Walter C. Banks, Barney Wilsker, Peter W. Townsend, David Fiant, Moy Pink Fun, Charles Sahlin, Robert P. Gladding, John Espanola, Harry Diehl, Charles O. Berghman, John J. Condon and Stamas D. Salonikos.

Mr. Leddy presented a petition from James Gordon, of 251 Spring street, whose cellar was flooded March 6 and 7 because of a defect in the sewer on Spring street, which once was able to carry off the sewerage matter but utterly failed, with results disastrous to his belongings in the basement, which was flooded. He asked for $125 to repair the damage caused by the flood.

Alderman Leddy said he had inspected the place at the time and the conditions were as reported in Mr. Gordon's petition. Apparently the trap had been forced and the basement, where the kitchen was located, was flooded to a depth of three feet or so and the contents ruined. The cellar of Mr. Goggin, across the street, had also been flooded. It seemed as though a connection should be made via Cannon street to relieve the conditions. Mr. Leddy thought the claim should be referred to the Representative Council. It was suggested that a report and recommendation be made from the Board to the Council, the Board having no money to pay for such damages and the sentiment appearing to be that the claimant should not be put to the expense of suing. Alderman Albro suggested that Alderman Leddy had made a report on the matter, and that seemed to be sufficient. Alderman McLellan also thought that the report of Alderman Leddy covered the matter, and so the claim was referred to the Representative Council.

Alderman Hughes reported on the matter of superfluous poles on Touro street that he and Chief Kirwin had personally inspected the place, and the chief considered that all the poles were needed, and it seemed to Alderman Hughes that they were, but since the Manager Wright of the Providence Telephone Company had so arranged things that he reported the one in front of Dr. Stewart's could be eliminated, and as this was the most objectionable, and as the others seemed necessary if people are to have telephone service, he thought the residents would feel satisfied.

Alderman Albro reported that the ash collection committee had completed its work, and that the city was cleaned up and Mr. Welch had an opportunity to try what he could do with a fair chance. He would go into the Fifth ward Friday with nothing in the shape of a handcart. Alderman Shepley said the committee had consulted Mr. Welch and he seemed sure he could do the work if once he caught up. Four teams were hired from J. J. Dugan for a day and a half, and one team Thursday finished up the work. Alderman Hughes moved that the committee be continued in case of further trouble. He said the public expects to have this work done properly, and the interests of the public should be looked out for.

There being no further business, the Board adjourned.

CAPTAIN GLEAVES TO LEAVE.

William B. Caperton Will Succeed to Command of the Naval Station, Narragansett Bay.

A despatch from Washington announces that Rear Admiral Eugene H. C. Leutze (retired) will be relieved of the command of the New York navy yard early in June and will be succeeded by Captain Albert Gleaves, now in command of the naval station, Narragansett bay, and the Second naval district, and that Captain Gleaves will be succeeded by Captain William B. Caperton, now a member of the naval examining and retiring board, on duty at Washington.

Captain Gleaves was formerly inspector in charge of the Torpedo Station and was the first commanding officer of the new battleship North Dakota. He succeeded to the command of the local naval station last summer on the retirement of Rear Admiral Raymond P. Rodgers, the latter's duties being divided between Captain Gleaves and Captain William L. Rodgers, the former taking the command of the naval station and the Second naval district and the latter becoming president of the Naval War College.

Captain William B. Carperton, who will succeed to the command of the naval station, is No. 6 in the grade of captain and will be promoted to rear admiral on the retirement of Rear Admiral Zane in August, so that shortly after his coming the Narragansett bay naval station will again resume flag rank. Captain Caperton entered the naval service June 13, 1871, and has had 41 years of service. In recent years he has been on duty as inspector of the lighthouse service, was commander of battleship Maine from April 20, 1907, to August, 1908, and since September 10, 1910, has been a member of the naval examining and retiring board at Washington.

FAMOUS OLD HOTEL DESERTED.

Leave-Taking of The Bellevue in Philadelphia Marked by Impressive Ceremonies.

When the members of the Manufacturers' Club left their headquarters at Broad and Walnut streets at midnight Saturday, after President Nathan T. Folwell turned out all the lights, their exodus proclaimed the passing of a famous Philadelphia institution—the old Bellevue Hotel.

The leave-taking of the old building was marked by impressive ceremonies. At 8:30 o'clock an executive meeting was held in the old Clover room, the scene of many a famous banquet, where the foremost statesmen of the nation have been entertained, and an "old home night" was observed. Speeches were made by George C. Boldt, the creator of the old Bellevue; Laurence McCormick, his lieutenant in the historic building, and now manager of the Bellevue-Stratford; President Nathan T. Folwell of the Manufacturers' Club, and many others.
